AMERICANS BOMB NAZI U-BOAT OFF ARUBA

Enemy Submarine Thought Damaged By U. S. Aviators

Marauder Sends Shells Crashing into Refinery Area

Correspondent Has Narrow Escape When Building Is Attacked

By CHANDLER DIEHL
ST. NICHOLAS, ARUBA, DUTCH WEST INDIES, Feb. 19 (AP)—United States bombers, already aloft on patrol when an enemy submarine sent shells crashing into the mammoth oil refinery area in a new attack at dawn today, dropped a load of heavy explosives so quickly as to make the pilot hopeful that the U-boat was damaged.

No damage or casualties were reported on this island at noon, hours after the attack.

Today's attack was a renewal of Monday's raiding which resulted in the sinking and damaging of several shallow-draft tankers used in bringing oil from the Venezuelan mainland to the mammoth refineries here.

Refineries Under Fire
Four miles off the southeast corner of the island rocketed three flares over the island at about 5:35 a. m., lighting up the targets, and followed with a series of about five shots of about three-inch size. All of them fell short of the tank farm and refinery and did not explode.

The bombers swung into action at this point and the submarine made a crash dive.

One of the U-boat shells hit on land near the advanced positions of the United States troops who were here co-operating with the Dutch in the defense of the important oil properties. Another hit the refinery's library building.

Still another hit a 32-room bachelors' quarters building where I had spent the night.

Has Narrow Escape
I awakened to the crash of the shell which cracked like a gigantic whip as it entered the roof in the east wing, just around the corner from the room I shared with Frank Smith of the Chicago Times.

This shell continued on an almost unbelievable course, blasting completely through a room in the west wing, smashing a drain-pipe outside and winding up under an automobile whose motor it first carved in.

At the first gunfire I rolled to the floor in the utter darkness of our blacked-out room. Then I heard another shell crash with a heavy echo of nearness—probably the library.

I hastily put on my pants and shirt and rushed out into the still-rising dawn. Some dressed and some

Takes No Chances With 2 Good Tires

EAST ST. LOUIS, Feb. 19 (AP)—Pvt. Renwick L. Allen of Scott Field is taking no chances. Stopped for questioning while walking along a street carrying two tires, Allen explained he couldn't lock the trunk compartment of his car and he'd "be darned if he'd leave them there to be stolen."

Police stored the precious rubber until Allen completed his shopping tour.

Found in the Chicago home of Mrs. Lillian Schwenke, these seven babies were taken to an orphanage while authorities attempted to locate their parents. Mrs. Schwenke was arrested for operating a child welfare agency without a license.

Three Men Die In Crash of 2 Speeding Trains

Two Trainmen among Victims of Collision in Florida

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19 (AP)—Three persons, two of them trainmen, were killed and at least forty-one persons were injured today in the head-on collision of two fast tourist trains operating between Miami and New York.

Hours after the wreck, which occurred on a curve seven miles south of this resort center, Sheriff L. R. Baker of Palm Beach county said three bodies had been pulled out and he expressed belief that others were buried beneath the twisted cars.

Both engines and at least five coaches of the Seaboard Air Line train—the northbound Sun Queen—and the Miami-bound Orange Blossom special—were telescoped. The Diesel-type engines were crushed badly and several coaches were twisted into a battered heap.

A brisk fire, flaring from the wreckage, had not been brought under control four hours after the collision. Two hundred soldiers from Morrison Field at West Palm Beach joined Sheriff Baker and deputies in rescue work and guard duty.

Engineer Killed
Division Trainmaster William G. Guess of the Seaboard Air Line at Jacksonville said J. W. Browning of Plant City, Fla., engineer of the northbound Sun Queen, and T. A. Goode of Tampa, Fla., fireman of the Miami-bound Orange Blossom special, were killed instantly.

A railway official said L. N. Hayes of Tampa, engineer on the Orange Blossom, was injured seriously. Ed Sullivan of Waldo, Fla., fireman on the Sun Queen, was also hurt slightly, as were G. L. Green, a baggage master; J. E. Dixon, baggage car employee; and Manuel Ebo of Brooklyn, N. Y., a steward.

Dr. Thomas P. Riley of Clifton, N. J., was one of the first passengers brought to a hospital here. Mrs. Riley was cut and bruised but did not require hospitalization.

"I don't know how it happened, but I believe it was a head-on collision," Mrs. Riley said.

A Post-Times reporter said the trains hit head-on, and that at

Chief of Free French in U. S. Visits Welles

Vichy-American Relations Discussed at Washington Conference

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Drien Tixier, chief of the Free French delegation in the United States, visited the state department today while Vichy-American relations continued at a critical stage.

Tixier talked for about twenty minutes with Sumner Welles, secretary of state and acting head of the department in the absence of Secretary Cordell Hull who is away for a rest.

State department officials would not comment on his visit and all that Tixier himself would say to reporters was that he intended to go to London soon for a conference with General Charles De Gaulle, leader of the Free French movement.

Welles Shows Concern
At a press conference earlier, Welles made clear that concern was continuing here over reports that Axis armies in Libya are receiving supplies through French Tunisia, and that the Vichy collaboration with Germany and Italy is extending beyond the armistice agreements.

The acting secretary was asked whether explanations received from Vichy had been satisfactory. He replied simply and categorically that the information so far received from the French government was not satisfactory, and further instructions had been sent to Ambassador William D. Leahy at Vichy.

12 Jap Bombers Attack Bandoeng

BATAVIA, Java, Friday, Feb. 20 (AP)—Bandoeng, inland Java city which is the headquarters of the Netherlands East Indies army, was attacked yesterday by twelve enemy bombers and twenty fighters. Some damage was inflicted.

Dutch fighters got into the air promptly and one Japanese bomber was believed shot down. One Dutch fighter was lost and the pilot killed; another was shot down but saved himself by parachute.

It was learned meanwhile, the Aneta news agency said, that eight Japanese bombers and one fighter were shot down in Wednesday's attack on the Soerabaja naval base, with the loss of one allied plane.

By DANIEL DE LUCE

RANGOON, Burma, Feb. 19 (AP)—British Imperial troops counter-attacking from the west bank of the shallow and winding Bilen river drove a new Japanese assault force back into the stream today in the heaviest of fighting.

Both Japanese and British paid heavily with lives—the invaders in trying to consolidate a bridge-head across the stream; the British fighting desperately to hold them back in these distant approaches to Rangoon.

Japs Cross Bilen
Some Japanese shock troops yesterday had crossed the Bilen in small boats and fought their way up the west bank in hand-to-hand combat, and the position of these troops tonight was not explained.

Many of the boats, however, were known to have been broken up in mid-stream by British artillery fire or seared with machine-gun bullets, and once ashore, the invaders met the hottest fire.

East of the Bilen the main Japanese force was assaulted by RAF bombers, protected by both British and the American volunteer group fighters.

The army communique told this story: "The enemy first succeeded in cutting our west flank north of Bilen."

"Our troops were subjected to a heavy attack, and a counter-attack had to be launched."

"The enemy tried to engage our left flank but by means of counter-attack our positions were kept intact."

"The enemy tried to cross the Bilen river but our troops drove them into the river."

Report Many Casualties
"Fighting was extremely fierce and casualties were heavy on both sides."

The Bilen lies about eighty miles due northwest of Rangoon, between the rivers Sittang on the west and the Salween on the east. It was acknowledged frankly here that the British might not be able to hold the line indefinitely and might be forced back to the west bank of the Sittang, last natural barrier to Rangoon and its railway feeder line to the Burma road.

BATAVIA, NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES, Feb. 19 (AP)—American troops and American fighter and bomber pilots stood tonight with other allied reinforcements and the Dutch against the gathering storm directed at this island of Java, the last major allied position in the south Pacific short of Australia.

One hundred and eighty-two Japanese ships had been sunk or damaged up to Feb. 14 in the entire Pacific theater, it was stated. This excluded the heavy enemy losses inflicted since the beginning last week of the invasion of southern Sumatra.

Of this known and incomplete tally of the invader's casualties, 109 ships were sunk, twenty-eight probably sunk and forty-five damaged, and of all these, American ships and planes accounted eighty-four of the known sinkings, fifteen of the probables, and accounted for twenty-eight of the damaged ships. Viereck and Hill Closely Linked By Witness

Alleged Propaganda Agent Reported Seen in Congressman's Office

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—A story of how George Sylvester Viereck, German propaganda agent, visited Capitol Hill in 1940 and arranged for wholesale distribution of congressional speeches attacking the administration's foreign policy was related in federal court today by George Hill, former assistant secretary of Rep. Fish (R-NY).

Hill, recently convicted of perjury for telling a grand jury that he did not know Viereck, testified at the latter's trial on charges of violating the foreign agents' registration act by concealing propaganda activities. Under sentence of two to six years, he was brought from jail to the court room.

He said he first became acquainted with the 58-year-old Viereck in July of 1940. He was at work in Representative Fish's outer office when Viereck and Fish entered from the Congress member's private office.

Fish introduced Viereck, he testified, and they told him that 125,000 copies of a speech by the late Senator Lundeen (FL-Minn) were to be

Gontrum Suggests Plan To Provide War Insurance

Would Have Private Companies Co-operate with the Government

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP)—State Insurance Commissioner John B. Gontrum believes private insurance companies and the federal government should work out a plan at once to provide property insurance against war damages.

"There is a tremendous demand on the part of property owners on this coast and the Pacific coast for war risk insurance," Gontrum said today on his return from a meeting of the executive committee of the Insurance Commissioners Association in New York.

"This demand has been increased by statements of the president and Congressional leaders that our coasts are vulnerable to attack," he said. "No such insurance is now available and Congress, where three bills on the subject now are pending, has taken no definite action."

Suggests Big Pool
Gontrum added, "I personally believe the most feasible plan would be for insurance companies as a whole to form a pool—say fifteen percent of their surplus—to underwrite such insurance."

"A government agency could be estimated to work with the companies in issuing the insurance. Some government fund should be set aside to reinsure the companies against loss greater than average so as not to imperil the solvency of the companies."

"I don't want to see anything done to imperil this solvency. At the same time, I don't believe the

Action in Line with First World War, Sen. Walsh Says

Only Five Senators Vote against Repeal of Pension Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—In response to angry criticism from all over the country, the Senate voted tonight, 75 to 5, to scrap the "pensions for Congress" law and then decided to give the nation's fighting men a raise in pay.

Exactly one month after it voted, 42 to 24, to grant pension privileges to members of Congress, the president, vice president and cabinet, the chamber reversed itself in response to widespread reaction that included a "bundles for Congress" movement and other barbed criticism.

Five Senators Opposed
Only five senators voted against the repealer, which now goes to a House which seems anxious to approve it. The five "no" votes were cast by Senators LaFollette (Progressive), Nye (R-ND), Wallgren (D-Wash.), Clark (D-Idaho) and Mead (D-NY).

Soon after the vote, the chamber accepted a suggestion from Senator Clark (D-Mo) and voted for an increase of twenty percent in the base pay for enlisted men and ten percent for officers serving in the army and navy in foreign countries, and in Midway, Hawaii and the Philippines.

This, explained chairman Walsh (D-Mass) of the Senate naval committee, was in line with action taken during the last World War.

This measure and the pension repealer were all wrapped up in a bill continuing for one year the pay of civilian and military personnel captured or missing in connection with the war. The whole measure

Former Democratic Leader Denies He Attacked Girl in Room

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Orman W. Ewing, former Utah Democratic national committeeman on trial for his life, denied today in Federal court that he raped a 20-year old government worker who lived in his rooming house.

Taking the stand in his own behalf, the 53-year-old defendant asserted that at the time the attack is alleged to have occurred he was fixing a leak in a bathroom and investigating a noise outside the house.

The prosecution contends that Ewing broke a chain on the door of the girl's room and attacked her sometime between 2 and 3 a. m. on October 26.

LONDON, Friday, Feb. 20 (AP)—Sir Stafford Cripps was named lord privy seal and government leader in the House of Commons early today in a government reorganization directed by Prime Minister Churchill as an answer to his critics.

The war cabinet was reduced from nine members to seven in the shakeup.

Lord Beaverbrook, minister of supply, declined to join the war cabinet on grounds of health, but he accepted a special mission to the United States.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—The sinking of a 5,000-ton cargo ship in the East China Sea by an American submarine was reported today in a navy department communique.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Feb. 19 (AP)—United States army headquarters announced today that two explosions "presumably caused by a submarine" rocked two vessels anchored off the harbor here at 11:40 o'clock last night. Stimson Asserts U. S. Is Massing Forces for Drive

Says Strength Cannot Be Split for Coastal Defenses

By RICHARD L. TURNER
WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Secretary Stimson said today the nation was massing its forces for the earliest possible offensive and would not disperse its strength to combat such coastal raids as the German attack on Aruba, the Dutch Oil Island.

Portays of that character, the secretary of war told newspapermen, were to be expected "all along our coasts" and at "other places." Demands from "thoughtless persons" that the country's forces be scattered to meet them were foreseen, he said, and "yielding to that pressure would be the surest way x x x to lose the war."

Preparing for Offensive
While the cabinet member was assuring the people that the United Nations would "seize every opportunity for counter-attack and the offense, and every opportunity for surprise," President Roosevelt was deep in a discussion of an essential preparation for such strategy—the shipbuilding program.

A group of high officials, including Admiral Emory S. Land, the director of the program, and Donald M. Nelson, the chairman of the war production board, conferred with the chief executive. Two principal purposes were in mind, a spokesman said: how to increase the program and how to speed it up.

The shipbuilding program has been progressing rapidly and is as far along as any phase of the war effort, but in some administration quarters concern has been expressed at the extent of recent losses along the Atlantic coast, particularly the destruction of tankers.

Sees New York in Danger
Stimson's statement on the possibility of enemy attacks along the coastlines and elsewhere, following closely upon President Roosevelt's assertion of Tuesday that under certain circumstances, New York could be shelled and bombs dropped on Detroit.

In combination, these statements were taken as meaning obviously that coastal communities must take their chances because for the present there are too few men and materials to allow spreading them along hundreds of miles of coastline, and simultaneously massing them for attack.

In this connection, it was remembered that the submarine shelling of Aruba did little damage ashore, and that Japanese submarines had several times shelled installations on outlying islands of the Hawaiian group with no effective result.

In Front Lines Now
"We are on the front lines ourselves now," Stimson said. "We can't buy our way out; we can't produce our way out; we can only fight our way out by hard intelligent fighting."

He recalled previous demands for protection of the countries' coasts or borders—against a fleet of four Spanish cruisers, reported at large in the Atlantic in 1898, and against Mexicans in 1911. In the latter instance, figures showed, he said, that if all available forces had been deployed along the Mexican border, there would have been two soldiers for each mile. An analogy between that and the present situation was obvious.

On the side of attack, Stimson told of new plans for training men and disclosed that the army had 90,441 enlistments in January—more than double the record for any month of the first world war.

"This shows," he said, "the men who are going to fight the war are not yielding to the defeatism or despair we sometimes hear of back of the fighting fronts."

He announced, too, that three historic divisions of the World War the skeletons of which were maintained during the interval of peace, had been ordered to service March 25. They are the Seventy-seventh, famous for the "lost battalion" episode, the 82nd, of which sergeant Alvin York was a member, and the 90th, known as the Alamo division because its members came from Texas and Oklahoma.

A battalion of Filipinos in this country is to be formed, he announced, "in recognition of the intense loyalty and patriotism of those Filipinos who are now residing in the United States."

Eventually, he said, they will have the opportunity of "fighting on the soil of their homeland."

Similarly, a battalion of citizens of other allied nations, residing here, may be organized, and if the volunteers come forward in sufficient numbers, an allied legion may be formed.

Asks End of Profanity As Victory Necessity

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Anti-Profanity League asked President Roosevelt in a letter made public today to "order or request" the nation on George Washington's birthday to refrain from profanity for the war's duration.

"Now is the time to act," wrote Arthur S. Colborne, the league's president and founder. "Follow the lead of General George Washington, commander in chief of the Continental army, who told his troops not to swear, or we will lose."

"Many people are praying for peace, but their prayers are weakened by the great numbers that are sending up profanity. We are trying many things. Please let us try no profanity."

Dr. Riley Hopes To Convince Army Health Officials Are Needed Here

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP)—Dr. R. H. Riley, state health department director, said today army officials had informed him approximately twenty-five per cent of his key health officials soon would be called to military duty.

Men mainly affected would be county health officers, Dr. Riley stated.

"I am going to do all I can to persuade the army that these key men are essential to civilian welfare and to ask for their deferment," he said.

Needed for Defense

The director said they constituted "the backbone of selective service medical work throughout the state and of defense medical services."

Most county health officers have been named to direct civilian defense medical work in their respective counties.

"As more and more doctors are drawn into the armed forces, the burdens placed on the health officers becomes greater," Dr. Riley added. "Because Maryland, for its size, has more war industry and more military establishments than any other state, I believe we have an extraordinary claim on the medical services of these men."

He said the public health service recognized health needs in Maryland by providing twenty additional workers. Of these, six are in department headquarters in Baltimore; four, in Baltimore county; three, in Prince Georges county; and one each in Baltimore city, and Harford, Montgomery, St. Mary's and Washington counties.

Need Declared Acute
Dr. Riley said that, because of rainings in sanitation, public health work and epidemiology of county health officers, he had been informed by Col. Robert C. McDowell, Third Corps Area medical officer, that "just now the need for men of this type is exceedingly acute."

The board of health, at its last meeting, resolved, "it is the opinion of the state board of health that deputy state health officers should be kept in their respective localities for the present as they are necessary to the health, welfare and safety of their local communities."

Miss Chamberlin, an earlier defense witness, asserted that the door to the girl's room had not been damaged although the prosecution contends it was forced.

She also testified that it was necessary to go through her room to reach the girl's room, and contended no one did pass through the room.

On cross examination, Miss Chamberlin denied that she had asked the girl's mother to "drop the case" but admitted she made a trip to the former Utah home of the girl three weeks after the alleged attack.

Three West Virginians Prisoners of Japs

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—The news that three West Virginians were believed to be among 2210 prisoners taken by the Japanese provided relatives today with the first word about the men since early last December.

Two were marines, Privates Lorel Jonas Bragg of Richwood and Elbert Samuel Perkins of Dunbar, believed taken on Wake and Guam islands respectively, and the third was a civilian, 25-year-old Frank Haste of Charleston, who was employed on the Wake Island air base.

Mrs. Martin Bragg of Richwood said she was "mighty glad to have any information," but had not received any official notification.

The last letter she received from her son came on December 3, and although the mailing point was not distinguishable she believed from the nature of his letter that he was on Wake Island.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Japanese air attacks on Port Darwin look like an attempt to isolate Java for attack rather than a prelude to an invasion drive at Australia. They are aimed both at impeding American-Australian reinforcement of Java and at stirring popular clamor in Australia against further weakening of home defense forces.

The scope of the bombing raids is significant. Port Darwin is an essential advance operating base for Allies of the Dutch, a Pacific supply line pivot. In no other case except the Pearl Harbor, Singapore and Manila surprise attacks has such an enemy air fleet been concentrated at Port Darwin.

More than seventy fighter-escorted bombers made up the first wave. Four of twenty-one ships in the second wave were downed. Whether any first wave craft also were knocked out has not been stated.

May Be Heavy Blow
That gives an impression of a successful surprise attack. Lacking word as to damage wrought, its effectiveness cannot be gauged. If the port was crowded with allied combat and troop and supply ships, it could prove a heavy blow.

The nearest Japanese-held land bases for the big bomber flight over Port Darwin are 600 miles and more away, about their distance limit. The fighter escorts must have been picked up at sea from carriers. The hunt for those carriers must be on by Australian and probably American planes. Their elimination would go far to protect Port Darwin from further large scale air attacks.

In any event sustained bombing of the port seems improbable owing to the distances involved and also to the fact that Japanese air power will have to concentrate against Java if a quick kill there is to be attempted. Yet the raids may have forced reassignment to the Port Darwin area of Australian and

Sugar Hoarders Urged To Return It to Grocers

Price Administrator Henderson Appeals to Housewives

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Price Administrator Leon Henderson today urged householders who have built up excess sugar supplies to "remove the stigma" of hoarding by selling it back to the neighborhood grocer.

The price administrator, declaring that hoarding or bootlegging of scarce commodities could almost be "traitorous" suggested that housewives ask their grocers to buy sugar back at the current retail prices. The grocers would then be expected to re-sell it at the same price, as a patriotic service.

Henderson suggested also that householders, who must declare the amount of sugar in their cupboards when they register for copies of war ration book sometime in March, might "sell some of it to your neighbors who may be without."

Henderson said the instructions who had built up sugar hoards since Pearl Harbor and were not intended to affect farm wives and others who normally buy sugar in quantity once or twice a year.

Besides retail rationing, a sugar rationing program for industrial users is expected to be issued in March, it was learned today, with one of the tentatively prepared plans calling for cuts up to forty per cent for certain commodities.

Pending issuance of this industrial rationing order, the WPB fixed March allocations to industrial users, such as bakeries, bottlers, confectioners and canners at eighty per cent of their March, 1941, consumption.

Huge Power Company Write Downs Ordered

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Federal Power Commission issued an order today which it said, with prior orders, would result in a $28,000,000 write down in plant accounts of western Pennsylvania companies in the Associated Gas and Electric system.

The order approved the ultimate acquisition by Pennsylvania Electric Company of all the utility assets and facilities of the Solar Electric Company, Erie Lighting Company, the Clarion River Power Company, Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation, and Associated Maryland Electric Power Corporation.

By the write-downs, the commission said, the aggregate amount of $92,000,000 originally appearing on the books of the Western Pennsylvania companies would be reduced to $64,000,000.

Lear Asks Many Sacrifices for Duration of War

Says It Can Be Won by Blood, Not by Golden Maginot Line

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 19 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, a stern military disciplinarian of few words, assailed tonight wishful thinking in a war he said would be won not by a golden Maginot line but by blood and sacrifice.

The commander of the Second Army—who made a whole battalion march fifteen miles in the hot sun last July for yoo-hoing at girl golfers in shorts, told a University Club forum "great will be out folly if we think our dollars will give us security."

"Never overlook the fact that no matter how fine and how considerable 'the equipment that our factories produce and our ships deliver,' he said in a prepared speech, 'it is the man whose flesh is vulnerable but whose spirit is invincible, who will win the battles and bring victory. Your sacrifices will be light compared to theirs."

"France built a Maginot line and took confident refuge behind its protection. Let us not err spiritually and morally—and let me add, strategically—by mentally building a golden Maginot line."

He called for intensified application by labor and capital alike "to give without stint of their efforts just as the soldier may be called upon to give his life."

Every industrial conflict now, he added, will be one for which "blood of our men in uniform will pay or the blood of our allies upon whom we depend, without whom we would suffer far more greatly."

He spoke of the need for discipline and training in the army, saying many of the nation's casualties in the last war were caused by lack of them. He said this time soldiers would go into battle much better prepared.

"It is not the soldier's friend who condones his lapses," he emphasized. "In battle bullets do not condone."

He attacked talk of the "kind of peace to be made" and of criticizing the country's allies. "If Hitler were to direct our thoughts, he would say that we are doing quite well—for him—if we pin our minds to the problems of peace after the war we have not won, if we are gravely concerned and chatter among ourselves in worry over the future of Europe because Russia is an ally x x x."

The commander asserted that not since 1812 has the United States faced such a life-and-death test.

"We have been injured to no great hardships caused by such a struggle. We have suffered no widespread losses of our young men in war with other nations. We don't know what it means."

Soberly I must warn you that we are going to learn."

Guffey Predicts Four Keystone Democrats Will Run for Senate

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 19 (AP)—U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey today predicted a four-way fight for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Pennsylvania this spring.

He said William C. Bullitt, former ambassador to France, Judge Ralph H. Smith of Pittsburgh, Auditor General P. Clair Ross and Luther A. Harr, bituminous coal commission counsel, all would be candidates, though none has formally announced.

Responsible sources in Washington said President Roosevelt proposed Bullitt as a compromise candidate. While state leaders said they knew nothing about this, some gave immediate endorsement to the idea, including Former Governor George H. Earle, long-time friend of Bullitt.

The state committee meets Feb. 27 to consider a slate. Guffey urged suspension of the party rule requiring the committee to "recommend" a candidate, so that there would be "a free and open" primary.

Ickes To Restrict Deliveries of Oil

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Oil industry sources said tonight that Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes had approved a plan to restrict deliveries of heating oils to eastern consumers because stocks are low.

Designed to spread available supplies, the program was said to provide:

1. Deliveries to commercial users must be limited to 14 days' supply.
2. No house heating oil may be delivered until the oil on hand in a residence is less than one-fifth of tank capacity. The tank may be replenished only up to three-quarters of capacity.

The restriction plan was submitted to Ickes by the oil industry which proposed it become effective immediately. The co-ordinator's office declined to confirm that the program had been approved. A representative of the oil industry said, however, that an announcement was expected from Ickes probably tomorrow.

China Plans To Replace Burma Road With New Route, Statement Declares

100 Jap Planes Bombard Darwin

CHUNGKING, CHINA, Feb. 19 (AP)—China's government disclosed today that Chiang Kai-shek has made concrete arrangements to replace the Burma Road with an India-to-China rail-road-river route, now that the approaches to Rangoon are mined and that menaced city is no longer a practical port of entry for war material consigned to China.

Chinese troops meanwhile are in positions on the upper Thailand-Burmese frontier for offensive action by which they expect to invade Thailand "step by step" and relieve the Japanese pressure on lower Burma, an army spokesman said.

Report Chinese Advancing
(A Reuters version of this statement quoted the spokesman as saying Chinese forces already were advancing into Thailand.)

An official Chinese statement disclosed the mining of the Rangoon sea approaches and the yielding for the time being of Rangoon as a port of entry.

But it said Generalissimo Chiang, in his current talks in India, had solved satisfactorily the problem of India-Chinese transport; that steps were settled upon whereby a much larger quantity of goods than ever traversed the Burma road would henceforth be transported to China via India; and that goods for China will be sent direct from Indian ports.

Plan Overland Route
The statement did not mention the route to be used but it is known to be overland through Burma, involving carriage by rail, road and river. (Presumably the plans contemplate eventual use of the partly-completed "Assam Road," some 400 miles north of the Burma Road, which is being carved out of Himalayan cliffs and put across great rivers to Assam in northeastern India where it connects with railways to Calcutta—a route 2300 miles long by motor, river steamer and railway.)

The Chinese army spokesman, relating details of a sharp local clash on Feb. 5 between Chinese and Japanese troops on the Burma-Thailand front, said the Chinese forces in Burma were determined to wrest the initiative from the enemy by invading Thailand.

Nation Warned All Scrap Metals Must Soon Be Salvaged
PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19 (AP)—Lessing J. Rosenwald, director of the Bureau of Industrial Conversion, warned today the nation must salvage all scrap metals or 100,000 small business establishments would close their doors in six months.

"All scrap must be collected or our victory effort will fail," Rosenwald told a group of industrialists. "The situation is grave and unless we begin immediate and thorough salvage, 100,000 small businesses may close their doors within six months."

George Weymouth, assistant director of the industrial salvage division of the War Production Board, asserted scrap material was being hoarded by some industries and unless it is made available it will be requisitioned by the federal government.

parties except in accordance with rationing regulations.
The regional office of price administration said all such stocks have been frozen until rationing of reread and reread tires starts Feb. 23, even though they may not be the property of the dealers.

After Feb. 23, the tires may be moved only upon presentation of a certificate from a local rationing board attesting to the holder's right to the tires under the rationing regulations.

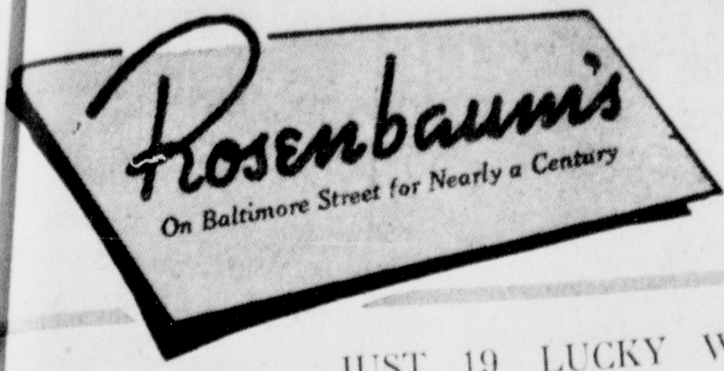

Some tire dealers apparently were confused by the four day interval between the freezing date and the date when rationing will start and thought there had been a time extension during which rereaders and rereaders could continue to release their work to the public, the regional office said.

Getting Down To Brass Tacks

ALL THE UPROAR throughout the country—and there was plenty of it—about boondoggling in the Office of Civilian Defense, has had more gratifying results.

In announcing that the office of inspectors general and Know-Your-Government division would be eliminated March 1, James M. Landis, director, said that they had "no further value" and that it was "urgently necessary that OCD be immediately stripped down for emergency action."

Pertinent observation on these remarks are that these divisions and some others never did have any practical value in civilian defense, and that not only this governmental setup but many others should likewise be "stripped down for emergency action" as the most of them should long since have been.

For another thing, the resignation of blonde Mayris Chaney, dancer friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, has been submitted and promptly accepted without comment, which in the circumstances seems to have been unnecessary.

Meanwhile Congress, which has been under fire along with the OCD with respect to that agency, is going ahead with such practical things as providing for gas masks and fire-fighting and other equipment for the OCD, which is a whole lot more sensible than rhythmic dancing and the other flapdoodle over which the people gaged.

These changes again illustrate the power of public sentiment once it has been thoroughly aroused. The next thing in line is for the public to make it so hot for Congress about getting all government on a war-time basis that something will be done about that.

Small Business Must Be Used

RESUMPTION of the efforts of managers of small manufacturing plants to obtain a fair share of war orders and to get material to carry on essential production for civilian use came about as a result of the failure to co-ordinate war orders and the priorities system. The government delayed so long in utilizing the resources of small business that it is now forced to the expedient in some instances of closing a factory until it can find war work.

But the reasons for the hardship are not important at this time except as they may point the way to a remedy. The goal now, as organized small business leaders have defined it, is to get all the work that will contribute to the war effort and hold factory organizations intact for post-war business. Many one-industry communities are threatened with worse unemployment conditions than prevailed in the depression of 1937, or in the dark days of 1932 and 1933. Unemployment compensation will carry them for a while, but unless help reaches them their workers will have to push into the great production centers where their presence will complicate housing and transportation problems.

It is realized that much of the trouble could not have been avoided. It came about when the World War situation called for increasing both the volume and speed of production. There was no time to set up an industrial selective service system. But the demand now is for the use of every available productive facility, and it must be met by recruiting the smaller industries.

Government Should Stay "on the Beam"

REPRESENTATIVE A. S. MIKE MONRONEY (that's his correct name as reported in the Congressional Directory), Democrat of the Fifth Oklahoma district, believes government agencies should "stay on the beam," and that is exactly what the people have been thinking as demonstrated by their outcry against the superlatives of the civilian defense organization. That outcry has been symptomatic of their attitude toward many other governmental agencies and bureaus.

"There is nothing essentially communistic about the establishment of youth programs, physical fitness courses, racial relations forums," Representative Monroney told his colleagues in the House. "Our best organizations, including the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Junior League, the Rotary Club, and the Y. W. C. A. have been working on these problems with more success than governmental agencies have had for many years. These volunteer groups should be encouraged — instead of discouraged — to continue this valued work. You can't buy that kind of talent in a governmental agency."

"Mr. Speaker, just as Congress should stay on the beam, I believe it is equally important for government agencies and bureaus to stay on the beam too. There is no argument that the Office of Civilian Defense is all over the lot. We wanted it to care for the wounded and homeless in bomb raids and to extinguish incendiary fires.

"Instead we are delivered another of those governmental programs, embodying the familiar uplift and betterment via the big salary route. It often seems that about the only agency in government that hasn't set up a youth-health-racial-group program is the Office of Collector of Internal Revenue."

"A quick survey of salary overhead indicates that the regional offices listed under Speakers Division total about $418,000 while those for Civilian Protection staff total about $44,000. The salary totals of the Volunteer Participation offices and staffs, community planning and organization, youth activities and group activities, physical fitness and know-your-government branches is almost $197,000. Meanwhile the salary total for Emergency Medical is $16,000 and for Fire Defense about $42,000. "These figures surely indicate that OCD is 'slightly' off the beam. Do you remember 'Wrong Way Corrigan'?"

Representative Monroney has hit the nail squarely on the head here. What he said, and what similarly has been said by the people of late, should have the desired effect.

Work Stoppages That Should Be Stopped

WORK STOPPAGES continue to impede war production despite the urgency for military stores and supplies, the National Association of Manufacturers has revealed in pointing out that sixty-eight strikes were reported in the metropolitan newspapers as having occurred in January.

While the actual number of war production plant work stoppages—forty-three—in January was lower than in any month preceding Pearl Harbor, that fact, it was emphasized by the association, is no gauge of their importance in impeding the war effort. There is no way to measure, it was pointed out, the ultimate effect of the stoppages on the production of war materials by other industries dependent upon the strike-bound plant for supplies and materials.

The N. A. M. compilation, it was pointed out, did not purport to report on every strike occurring at defense and non-defense plants during January. The compilation was made from newspapers in principal industrial centers of the nation.

The forty-three strikes at "defense plants" involved 15,512 workers and 661,976 lost man-hours. Twenty-five other strikes at non-defense factories involved 13,108 men and a loss of 1,750,224 man-hours, a total of 2,412,200 man-hours lost during January because of work stoppages.

The loss from each work-stoppage becomes greater, the association said, as more factories are converted to war production and more and more men are trained to new jobs. An example of how serious a single strike by a relatively small group of men can be, said the N. A. M., was the walkout of sixty workers at the Detroit Nut Company plant on February 16. The strike was regarded as the "most serious defense strike in recent weeks" in Detroit and continuation of it would close a dozen vital defense industries, Edward M. Owen, Michigan labor conciliator, said. The five work-stoppages in three days by 10,000 workers at the Ford Motor Company at Detroit, earlier in February, seriously delayed construction of a plant to make four-engine bomber planes.

It is good to know that the strike stoppages are becoming fewer, but they ought to be terminated altogether in view of the urgent necessity for more and more war production.

If a cotton surplus is still worrying the government, why doesn't it start a rumor that cotton is soon to be rationed and sit back and watch the housewives decimate the surplus?

Junior announces he is looking forward to the day when soap, too, is rationed.

Learning from a Camel

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I've heard that the camel is the meanest animal that travels with the circus.

The tiger breaks loose and kills the farmer's cows. The elephant goes on a spree and butts over brick houses. But the camel just waits until he has you in a corner and then he fights a dirty fight.

If he hates you he lets you know it in four different ways:

First, he spits his cud at you, and circus folk say the camel's cud is worse than a pole cat's atomizer.

Second, he knocks you down with a terrific butt.

Third, he bites you and his bite is worse than the man-eating tiger's.

Fourth, he kicks you and they say his kick is harder than ten steers co-operating.

And when he's through with you, even Sherlock Holmes couldn't recognize you.

But the camel has one great trait. After he has blown up, after he has told you just what he thinks of you—with cud, kick, bite and butt—he forgets all about it. He holds no grudge.

The circus man who thinks a camel doesn't like him wraps a bale of hay in a canvas, walks up to the camel and irritates him. The camel loses his temper and attacks the bale, the man runs to cover, and the camel abuses the bale of hay. He makes it wish it had never been born. But when all that is over, the circus comes back and pats the old camel, knowing that his grievance is gone. It's out of his system forever.

That seems like a great trait to me. We human beings can be just as mean as any camel. We can attack in more ways than a camel ever thought of. But we hold our grudges, we don't get all the meanness out of our hearts. We blow up, go mad, do dirt, and afterwards we're ashamed. And because we are ashamed we hate the fellow who is the cause of our regret. He shouldn't have made us act like an angry camel. We'll hold our hate until the last tent pole of life's circus is down and we are moving to another stop on our romantic journey. Not all of us know when to stop hating.

That's one thing we can learn from a camel.

Henderson Talks Billions but He Is Looking Ahead

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Discussing national economics at one of his press conferences the other day, Price Administrator Leon Henderson seemed to a reporter, who happened to be rather vague with the figures he mentioned, "About" or "approximately" so-and-so-much was the way he expressed himself. The scribe asked if the administrator did not consider this a trifle indefinite.

"Why, yes, it is," agreed Leon, "but I'm speaking only roughly now, in terms of billions."

Fair Sample
That's a fair sample of financial conversation in Washington at present. Inquire of an emergency official how much something's going to cost, and his reply's likely to be, "Oh, a few billions," which is considered reasonably exact.

Astronomers at the naval observatory, accustomed to reckoning distances in light miles, between far-off stars and planets, tell me that it makes their brains reel to talk with up-to-date government arithmeticians, who calculate in near-infinities of dollars.

It's years since Uncle Sam's expenditures initially hit the $1,000,000,000 mark. Just one lone little billion, Thomas B. Reed was speaker of the House of Representatives at the time. Many folk felt that $1,000,000,000 annually was a terrific amount for Uncle Samuel to be spending. Newspapermen asked Czar Reed if he didn't think so, too. "No," said Tom, who had a proper appreciation of the United States' enormously and rapidly increasing magnitude. "This is a $1,000,000,000 country."

His remark shocked a lot of people.

Close to Limit
Now our congressionally legalized maximum national debt limit, suggestive of the rate at which we've been spending during Czar Reed's era, is $65,000,000,000. According to Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau's latest report, however, we already are within a mere matter of $4,715,515,746 of sixty-five of 'em.

Furthermore, I'm wondering if Henry's report didn't underestimate our outstanding obligations a trifle — if we're not a few cents farther in the hole than the $60,284,184,254 he refers to.

Anyway, he informs us, "in the not distant future I'll ask Congress to boost the limit to $110,000,000,000, and then, perhaps, to remove it altogether."

Quite a Difference
What Czar Reeds say about $110,000,000,000 and subsequently making the sky the limit? We've a materially larger population to carry the load in 1942, and thereafter, than we had when he was the representative speaker. Nevertheless, there's quite a difference between the measly $1,000,000,000 that he indorsed and 110 of 'em, plus an unlimited number late. Would it make his gasp?—I'm asking.

Now, far be it from me to imply any doubt that the program outlined for us will work out otherwise than absolutely satisfactorily.

I cite figures simply because I think they're interesting.

Secretary Morgenthau says the outlook's o. k.—that we'll come out of this war in far better shape than we did the last time. His thesis is that, if we win, we'll still have all our original wealth and resources left with us, whereas, if the United Nations lost, it won't make any difference whether we owe nothing at all or owe a trillion. The argument is that, supposing the totalitarians are victorious, they'll take whatever

Deferment of Labor Leaders in Draft Is Denounced by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—At the request of A. F. of L. and C. I. O. and some government agencies, a "labor leader" may now be deferred from the draft.

Can't Break Even
All the same, a comparison—

The Commerce department's record is that Americans' national income last year was close to $90,000,000,000.

It can't be much bigger than that next year. And our debt, as per Secretary Morgenthau, will be at least $20,000,000,000 more than that.

Personally, if I owed nearly 25 percent more than my annual income amounts to, I wouldn't consider that my individual finances were on an especially gratifying basis.

That's something that Leon Henderson is stewing about—with all his price-fixing and anti-inflationary drive.

I hope to gosh it proves efficacious.

Henry Morgenthau is an optimistic chap. He's convinced, on general principles, that we'll come out of the war all right. Leon's hunch is that advance prevention's urgently necessary. He speaks casually in the language of approximate billions, but he reckons with 'em down to a copper cent, or percentage, as an ultimate proposition.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

A recent survey among growers and others indicates that the acreage of commercial early Irish potatoes in Maryland this year will be 5,900 acres compared with 5,200 acres in 1941 and an average of 6,690 acres for the ten years 1931-40. The trend in acreage is downward while the trend in yield per acre has been upward during the last ten years.

A Holstein cow, SX Philly Flora, owned by John M. Dennis, Jr., of Riderwood, is the five hundred and fifth Holstein to produce more than 100,000 pounds of milk. In six lactations this cow produced a total of 100,847 pounds of milk containing 3,446 pounds of butterfat. It would fill 4,650 ten-quart pails to overflowing. Her records were made under the supervision of the extension service, in co-operation with the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

Influence of the war on ornamental gardening and the nursery business will be a prominent part of the program at the Nurserymen's Short Course, which will be held at the University of Maryland, College Park, February 24 and 25.

There has long been a need on livestock farms in Maryland for a legume with much the same qualities as medium red clover and with the ability to persist for several years, producing quality hay, pasture and silage, says Albin O. Kuhn, specialist in agronomy for the University of Maryland Extension Service. Ladino clover, he says, comes nearest filling these needs of any of the legumes which have been introduced.

One has only to read the annual reports of home demonstration agents to appreciate the contribution they are making through extension teaching to the daily lives of the people with whom they work, says Miss Venia M. Keller, assistant director of the extension service and state leader of home demonstration work.

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—At the request of A. F. of L. and C. I. O. and some government agencies, a "labor leader" may now be deferred from the draft.

From the Washington headquarters of selective service announces.

A good many interpretations are being given to this. From the only really bitter lesson of the draft of World War One, it was learned that "blanket" exemptions were whole-sale escape avenues for a whole favored class. For a man to be exempt, merely because he could show that he was a railroad man or a ship-builder, deprived the local board of an opportunity to see what that meant to the winning of the war.

Too frequently it was found that it didn't mean anything. It was the chief complaint of our returning soldiers.

So this time it was written in the law that it isn't a man's calling alone that counts. He must show that he is engaged in a civilian job necessary to "expedite the successful prosecution of the war." He must be a "top" man, says the Selective Service headquarters.

A Loose Term

The latter is a pretty loose term. It would include a good many racketeering "labor leaders" like Willie Bioff who is now behind the bars. Labor leadership is generally supposed to be an elective office and in the great democracy of labor, there is no "top" man until you get pretty well up toward the national organization. If there are "top" men locally their conduct frequently would bear inspection.

The record of the real "top" men working in jobs "necessary to expedite the successful prosecution of the war" has been nothing to write home about in the past year-and-a-half. I am not talking about actual defense workers in factories.

Your true "top" man usually isn't employed in any factory He is paid by those who are so employed by dues collected out of their wages.

This number of man-hours lost in war production, many of them in "jurisdictional disputes" in which the employer is not even a party, is a positive disgrace. Could any "labor leader" engaged in one of these be regarded as necessary in the successful prosecution of the war?

Planes Held Up

I am reliably informed that in Egypt and China there are upwards of 500 created American planes that have been there for weeks but on account of a strike in a propeller plant, have no propellers and won't have any for many more weeks.

It is common knowledge that many strikes, slowing up whole production lines, have been craftily pulled in some department, small in itself, but so placed in the line of production that it ties up one and sometimes many great plants.

You may think that this is well over or on the wane. Remember how shortly after the joyous get-together meeting of A. F. of L. and C. I. O. leaders with the president, Mr. Philip Murray came forth with his direction to all his unions to demand $1 a day extra wage and other concessions not now generally granted. That means a big new struggle if it is pursued.

Is This War Aid?

Furthermore, if C. I. O. wins in that fight, A. F. of L. will have to take it up and be as successful or fade out. Together they claim about $10,000,000 members or counting 250 working days, $2,500,000,000 a year. Is that, and what will go with it, aiding the successful prosecution of the war?

One wonders what MacArthur's men will think about such things when they hear of this new draft deferment order. One wonders what the country will think about them when those long black boxes draped in red, white and blue bunting begin at first just to trickle home, rising in an increasing flood to tens of thousands. There is one right rule:

"Keep political and special interests away from the machinery of the Selective Service."

Building From Rio

From the Pittsburgh Press

Though the spotlight of the Rio conference has been turned off, the all-important work of Hemisphere defense against the Axis is going forward rapidly.

Undersecretary of State Welles, whose superb leadership contributed so much to the Rio success, is speeding up lend-lease operation to economic and military defense of its continent, is working closely with Washington.

Undersecretary of Commerce Taylor announces dispatch of United States economic and technical missions to Latin-American countries to put into operation Rio agreements for joint development of natural resources, transportation and communication facilities.

Arrangements for military co-operation are keeping pace with these economic and diplomatic efforts.

In all these fields Mexico, our strategic neighbor, is in the van of the hemisphere solidarity movement.

Even Argentina and Chile, which were unable because of local conditions to go as far as other republics at the Rio conference, are now moving faster than most observers anticipated.

The Chilean election campaign, after hamstringing Chilean delegates at Rio, has brought a democratic pro-American president into power, Juan Antonio Rios. Probably his action against the Axis will be limited only by the lack of preparedness on the long, exposed Chilean coastline.

Even Argentina, with its relatively large German and Italian populations, is acting. The army is being increased, coast defense strengthened, sabotage controlled and an effort made to cope with subversive movements swollen by Axis agents fleeing from Brazil and other countries.

The Pan-American united front is not yet perfect, but it is growing.

Tougher Going Is Seen for Japs In Near Future

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The

ing will get tougher for the very shortly. They may get the to Lashio in Burma and cut the China road. From air bases surrounding Java they may spread death through the Dutch East Indies. They might get MacArthur whenever they become willing to pay the terrific price. But at the borders of India and Australia, beetlelike hordes will have to pause for reflection.

India will not be easy unless have a fifth column much as powerful than the British supply. Both Chiang Kai-Shek and his went into India for the specific pose of persuading the local leadership to crush the fifth columnists immediately, rather than for the generalized purpose of enlisting sympathies.

The Indian politicians may anti-Jap, but they are also Jap. They have 700,000 troops their disposal (fifteen times as many as the Japs had recently) the Burmese front nearest the and these are fairly well equipped except in the air.

Japs Face Barriers
The Japanese, however, can push straight on from Burma, India. The mountains do not that way and there are no worth mentioning. A land across the wild and lofty front not likely.

What the Japs will no doubt if they decide to try India is to organize transports along the Burma coast for the type of paign they used in Malaya. swift landing thrusts they inch themselves along the coasts. But by the time they reach Calcutta, their air superiority will surely dwindle from lack of landing bases (the last available being at Rangoon.)

Australia's army is listed at 100 but her strength is greater and she, too, is favored geographically. In fact both these vast countries offer such formidable obstacles that few authorities here expect that they lie within Japanese objectives.

Hitler Busy in Egypt
The British are in danger Egypt. Hitler is opening up a supply route across the Mediterranean from Greece to Berlin, protecting it with many planes, fact lends further dismal significance to Churchill's announcement that the Mediterranean is closed to Axis traffic. All British planes must go around Good Hope.

If the British hold Rome, the Egyptian border and save Alexandria, they will be doing all one here expects.

Fall of Alexandria would be a blow to Singapore, as it would the Suez and British influence in the Near East as well.

Foolish Rumors

The replacement of Admiral with that Dutch admiral was cided upon long before the announcement, when the Dutch ed Mr. Roosevelt during Churchill stay here. The fight for the East Indies could be plainly coming up then after the prospective fall of Singapore.

While the change has spawned many foolish rumors and some of Hart's unknowing friends here, it was no doubt ordered the reasonable theory that Dutch should have the responsibility for leading the defense of own territory.

A Bad Arrangement

Someone is trying to promote an arrangement whereby FDR's and war-publisher, Archibald Leish, would write the war moniques—not only for the and navy but for the entire If there is one thing which break down confidence in the official announcements of news from the front, it would be to task away from the Army and Navy. Not even Hitler has tried that.

Communiques in all nations considered the most factual conservative of war communiques. They are the work of military not concerned with hurrah and they do not express opinion.

The War Department has particularly clean-cut in its moniques so far, and thereby built up faith in its daily record of events.

Only Guesswork

How long the Chinese can out with the Burma road cut a matter concerning which worthwhile information is available. A prominent official here is China has received enough military supplies from the United States tax her transportation facilities a year ahead. But he may not revealing much in view of the known chaotic condition of Chinese transportation.

Radio Price Boosts Stopped by Henderson

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Price Administrator Leon Henderson has demanded immediate cancellation of recent price increases on radios and radio-phonographs which he termed "inflationary and unfair."

He sent sharply worded telegrams to all wholesalers and retailers characterizing the price boosts as completely unjustified because a ceiling was imposed on manufacturers' prices Feb. 9. He requested that prices be restored to the levels of Feb. 10.

Retail price advances occurred on a nationwide scale, Henderson said, immediately after the War Production Board announced last Thursday that the greater part of civilian radio production would be halted April 22 and the industry converted to war production.

Tire-Rationing Planned in London

LONDON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Britain, where sales of tires have been prohibited for two months, soon will have a tire-rationing system, the government announced in the House of Commons.

All non-essential use of tires will be limited drastically, and persons not engaged in essential work may find their supply cut off for the duration.

Tire dealers already have been licensed and their prices of second-hand tires has been fixed at two-thirds of their new price. A drive is under way to raise 80,000 tons of scrap rubber monthly.

Mrs. Mary Freed Explains Nurses Aid Course

Registered Nurse Addresses Women's Civic Club Members

An explanation of the Nurses Aid Course, sponsored by the Red Cross, was the subject of the talk given by Mrs. Mary Freed, R.N., superintendent of nurses at Memorial hospital, to members of the Women's Civic Club at the regular meeting held yesterday in the nurses home.

The course, she said, was an eight hour one, with thirty-five hours of theory and forty-five of practice. Anyone taking the course agrees to serve 150 hours a year.

To be eligible the volunteer must be between the ages of twenty and fifty and have a high school education. They will be assistants at hospitals and in case of a catastrophe will be sent to the casualty stations, or if the patient is sent to a private home the volunteer will accompany the patient.

Classes will be organized with twenty-five or thirty to a group. Mrs. William Somerville, chairman of the volunteer service, will take the registrations. Mrs. Freed called for a volunteer instructor who is endorsed by the Red Cross.

Mrs. J. W. Holmes presided at the short business meeting and Mrs. H. T. Robinson introduced Mrs. Freed. The group was then taken on a tour of the class rooms and recreation room at the nurses home, through the operation rooms and the laboratory in the hospital.

The use of plasma in treatment for burns and shock was explained by Harvey Weiss, and Miss Cordelia Myers, who discussed the blood bank, with the members. Typed blood transfusions are used in cases of automobile accident, they were told. The liquid method of keeping the plasma was shown.

Guard Protected Is Walsh Opinion

Holds that Language of Act Should Not Exclude Men from Compensation

Attorney General William C. Walsh yesterday issued an opinion that officers and men of the Maryland State Guard have workmen's compensation protection when they are called into service in the present emergency, even though the language of the act of 1939 specifically refers to compensation "in time of peace and while engaged in military service."

Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor placed the matter before Mr. Walsh for interpretation. The Attorney General and one of his aides, Robert R. Bowie, submitted the opinion which held that the language of the Statute should not exclude the Guardsmen from compensation benefits because they were called out in time of war.

In their opinion the legal officials said the "broader construction" was suggested by the title of the act, since the title dealt with compensation benefits for the Guardsmen and failed to suggest in any way that their benefits might be limited to injuries occurring in peacetime service.

In giving their opinion the legal authorities pointed out, however, that "courts are not bound by an Attorney General's opinion and if the question is ultimately presented to them for decision, they may take a different view."

In case subsequent realizations upon outstanding debts prove to be more or less than estimated at the time of the creation of the existing reserve, the amount of the excess or inadequacy in the existing reserve should be reflected in the determination of the reasonable addition necessary in the taxable year. A taxpayer using the reserve method should show in his return the volume of charge sales (or other business transactions) for the year, and the percentage of the reserve to such amount, the total amount of notes and accounts receivable at the beginning and end of the taxable year, and the total amount of the debts ascertained to be worthless and charged against the reserve during the taxable year.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

Bad Debts—Method of Deduction

Bad debts constitute a considerable item in the returns of many taxpayers and may be treated in one of two ways—either by deduction from gross income in respect to debts ascertained to be worthless either in whole or in part and charged off, or by a deduction of a reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts. Taxpayers were given an option for 1921 to select either of the two methods. The method used in the return for 1921 must be used in returns for subsequent years unless permission is granted by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to change to the other method. Application to change must be made at least thirty days prior to the close of the taxable year for which the change is to be effective. However, a taxpayer filing a first return for 1941 may select either of the two methods subject to the approval of the Commissioner upon examination of the return. Permission to adopt the reserve method is limited to taxpayers having a large number of accounts where credit is extended over a considerable period of time. It is not granted for the purpose of handling one specific debt.

What constitutes a "reasonable addition" to a reserve for bad debts must be determined in the light of the facts, and will vary as between classes of business and with conditions of business prosperity. It will depend primarily upon the total

Gay Cape and Dress Ensemble

Marian Martin

Gay as our Easter bunny is this adorable dress and cape ensemble. Mother used Pattern 9999 by Marian Martin for the paneled frock, the trim little cape. She made the little frock in pink eyelet batiste, the cape in blue wool, for Easter-Parade vivacity. The dress has front and back yokes and a squared neckline and the side-front-and-back panels are cut on the bias. The cape, has a cunning Peter Pan collar and practical arm openings. To wear beneath it, make one "dress-up" frock with the neck line and puff sleeves trimmed with lace; one play frock with contrast front and back yokes and sleeves.

Pattern 9999 may be ordered only in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, cape, requires 1 3-8 yards 54 inch fabric; dress, 2 3-8 yards 35 inch fabric and 1 3-4 yards lace edging.

Send fifteen cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for this Marian Martin Pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address and style number.

Now, more than ever, it's time to sew! The brilliant new 1942 Marian Martin Pattern Book is ready with a whole Spring Parade of charming, original fashions that are easy to make at home. The smart Woman of To-Day will find tailored ensembles, prints, patriotic cottons, play-clothes, and the loveliest of lingerie, bridal wear and evening gowns. There are budget-wise junior miss modes, vivacious styles for the pig-tail set and slenderizing frocks for matrons. A whole pageful of defense sewing, too. Order a copy today! Pattern book ten cents.

Send your order to Cumberland News, Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York, N. Y.

A Little Trip To Eternity

SALISBURY, Md. (AP)—When Edward "Pete" Steele left to join the RAF, he promised a friend he would "get a couple of Germans."

Recently the British Air Ministry reported Steele lost in a flight from Malta, and said "it will be necessary for official purposes to consider him dead."

Just before that last hop Steele wrote his friend that he had gotten the "couple of Germans" and said, "I am writing this letter just in case, before a little trip that shouldn't last more than an hour."

Volcano Bursts Into Second Life

VOLCANO, Calif. (AP)—Ruined by the depression and intending to prospect for gold near this old ghost town, Walter Blomquist, his wife and brother were fascinated by an old hotel abandoned since gold rush days.

They leased the place, drove out swarms of bats and restored it to its old fashioned elegance. Mrs. Blomquist got busy in the kitchen. Today they have a small but thriving business, and the charm of the old town and hostelry has attracted many famous visitors.

The Evidence Was Good, After They Caught It!

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A thief who stole a chicken next door to a place where Deputies Mike McGrew and Louis Kolb were conducting a liquor raid, turned the fowl loose when he almost ran over the officers but that didn't help him any. As soon as deputies McGrew and Kolb caught the thief they made him help them catch the chicken.

Dairy Income Up

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP)—Milk, cream and butter brought more money to American farmers than any other products in 1941. According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, dairy products made up 17 per cent of the cash farm income from the sale of all crops and livestock combined.

War Risk Insurance For Smashed Thumbs?

HOLLYWOOD, Md. (AP)—Those painted feminine fingers and thumbs soon may be adorned with mercurachrome. A lumber and supply company, handicapped by lack of men on its building projects, is considering hiring 30 women 18 to 40 years old as carpenters.

How Lightning Helps A 'Rundown' Earth

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Lightning, long considered a foe of man, is really a friend. It helps to produce food by fertilizing the soil, and keeps the earth's "battery" charged.

The engineering journal, Westinghouse Engineer, reported these two benefits from lightning attack. With each thunder bolt nitrogen is released which in turn produces nearly 100 million tons of nitric acid, more than is manufactured by all the world's fertilizer plants.

The article also points out that lightning restores the electricity that constantly seeps from the earth to clouds and thus keeps the earth charged.

IDENTIFICATION CARD, PLEASE!

Members of Congress must now show identification cards bearing their photographs before gaining admittance to the capitol. Senator Hattie Caraway, of Arkansas, shows her card to officer James M. Mills, as she enters the building.

118 Swedish Ships Lost in War Action

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Official figures on Sweden's shipping losses since the outbreak of the war in 1939 show that 118 ships, with a total of 291,266 gross tons, and an estimated value of $7,000,000 kronor (about $21,750,000 at par), have been sunk. A total of 776 persons have died aboard the destroyed ships, in addition to 18 bomb and machine casualties aboard ships that were attacked but later made port safely. Of the casualties, 227 were non-Swedish.

The Swedish merchant marine at the beginning of 1942 consisted of 2,123 ships with a total of 1,460,000 gross tons.

Applicants for the regular navy medical corps must be under 32 years old; for the naval reserve medical corps under 50.

Even in Fun, RAF Aims for Berlin

LONDON (AP)—"Hitting Berlin" is a new dart game devised by officers on a northern RAF bomber station. A map of Berlin is placed on a table and players, paying a penny each for darts, stand on a chair five feet away. Points are scored according to the importance of targets hit within the city.

Proceeds go to the station commander's benevolent fund.

Patient Hitch-Hiker

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP)—An ambulance sent to pick up F. L. Radis after he had driven his auto over a 350-foot embankment was flagged down by a man on the highway. It was Radis himself.

"This is a break," said the slightly injured motorist. "I've been trying to hitch-hike into town but couldn't get a lift."

It Turned Out To Be The Easiest Question

CLEVELAND (AP)—A native of Yugoslavia, Mrs. Antonia Gnidovec, 59, wanted to become an American citizen. To test her knowledge of American ways Judge Paul Jones inquired who made a city's laws. "That stumped Mrs. Gnidovec. 'Well,' said Judge Jones, seeking to be helpful. 'What does the city council do?'"

"They get you jobs," said Mrs. Gnidovec.

And now she's a citizen.

USE THE LONE HONOR

AFTER ONE opponent has shown great length in one or more suits, it is sound to count on his partner for outstanding length in any other suit or suits. He is the one to guard yourself against when you are running the trumps and want to make sure of not losing any tricks in that suit. Ordinarily, if you hold the three top honors, with two of them in one hand opposite the single one, you will take the first trick where you have the brace, especially if you are able to finesse in either direction. But, when one opponent indicated as more likely to have the missing trump length, it is best to take the first trick in the hand which plays before him, so you leave a couple of honors over his possible holding.

Upon winning the opening trick with the spade A, East led his diamond K and South took stock. Seeing that he must lose a diamond trick, he realized he could not afford a loser in either trumps or clubs. But first he must dispose of the trumps. So he took the diamond K with his A and led the heart 5 to the A. When East discarded on that he was beaten, as there was no earthly way to keep West from a trump trick.

There should have been no question about the guess South had to make. East, having shown at least 10 and possibly 11 cards in spades and diamonds, could not possibly have had more than three hearts, whereas West might have the four he did. If South had reckoned thus, and had laid down his heart Q first, he would have had West shut out in the suit. This would have left him only clubs to guess, and most good players would have counted on West for a well-guarded queen there. If South had played that way, he not only would have been sound. He would have been successful.

NOTICE

TO ESSO FUEL OIL CUSTOMERS

In the Atlantic Seaboard Area

The war is seriously hindering Petroleum deliveries to this section. A number of tankers have been sunk. Others have been shifted to the Pacific to strengthen our armed forces there.

The submarine menace results in longer and slower tanker voyages by new routes.

In an attempt to stretch immediately available supplies to the maximum extent, the Petroleum Coordinator has approved an oil industry plan which includes the following restrictions on deliveries:

For all commercial use including War Industry Plants

Deliveries Must Be Limited to 14 Days' Supply

For home-owners and other heating oil users

No deliveries of domestic heating oil can be made in this area until the oil you have on hand is less than one-fifth of tank capacity.

When your tank is less than one-fifth full, a supply may be replenished up to three-quarters of capacity of tank.

In this area, the supply is low because of lack of transportation. Gasoline and other petroleum products are also seriously affected.

Further curtailment is in prospect. To make further restrictions less severe, you can help now by conserving fuel in the following way:

—Turn thermostats down at night and when you are away from home.

—Shut off radiators in rooms you are not using.

—Close bedroom doors at night.

—Keep vents and fireplace flues closed when not in use.

We shall all have to work together if the civilian oil supply is to continue through the heating season.

We're doing OUR best to make a little go a long way and keep War Production rolling.

Maybe you CAN'T carry a gun—but you CAN save oil. Won't you start right now?

Oil is ammunition—use it wisely!

No Refuge from Love

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION JERRY BRONDFIELD

CHAPTER FORTY-FIVE
KURT HURRIED Mollie and Neil out on deck and up toward the bridge, making sure they were hidden at all times from a low, gray cutter that was bearing down on them a couple of miles off the port bow.

A high wind whistled through the superstructure of the vessel, making progress difficult as the ship plunged through heavy seas. The muffled Mollie had tied loosely around her head a white scarf and blew off. She grabbed for it, but it escaped.

"Never mind," Kurt ordered. "You will not need that."

They reached the bridge. "You have your papers, you know your story?" Kurt said to the captain. The latter nodded and puffed lazily on his pipe, watching the cutter approach.

"Good . . . very well, you two." He led Mollie and Neil down some steps and through another passage-way. He opened a door and rang for the self-operated ship's elevator. Ten feet up he stopped the car, opened the door. When they got out they were in a large, empty space with nothing but a few empty boxes lying on the floor.

"Sit down and say nothing," he ordered. They sat down and Kurt took out his revolver, held it loosely in his hand and attached a small device.

"This is a silencer," he said succinctly.

"If you're boarded they'll search this tub from top to bottom," Neil ventured quietly.

Kurt grinned. "I don't believe they will board us. Probably they merely want to ask us some questions. However, should they come aboard they will have not the slightest indication that this vessel has a dummy smokestack. We are within that stack right now."

Neil looked around quickly. "Need I say," Kurt added, his eyes narrowing, "that the slightest sound on your part will prove fatal."

The ship was almost at a complete stop now. They could hear a muffled voice from a megaphone floating across the water. A little later they heard the putt-putt of a small boat coming alongside and someone calling, presumably to the captain on the bridge.

Kurt Wilhelm tensed. "So—they do come aboard!"

Tay Whitworth clambered up the ladder right behind the young coast guard officer. "I feel like a pirate boarding an old Spanish galleon."

Thanks for letting me come along, Lieutenant. This is fun.

"Hardly fun," the G-man, Bennett, said behind him. Three sailors brought up the rear.

The lieutenant saluted the ship's second officer. "May I see the captain, please?"

"Certainly. Here he comes now." The bearded one shuffled forward, his hands behind him, his pipe belching furious clouds of smoke.

"What is the trouble—what is this, please?"

The lieutenant saluted. "Sorry, Captain. Your name and ship?"

"Captain Johann Van Steen of the Zuyder Zee, formerly of Rotterdam. Before May, 1940, that is," he added with a wry face.

The coast guard officer smiled slightly. "I understand."

"We're bound for New York from Martinique with lumber, rubber and coffee," Captain Van Steen said easily. "Now then, can we be of any assistance?"

The G-man, Bennett, perked up his ears. "Martinique, eh?"

"We ran across some floating wreckage of a small boat about 15 miles back. We were looking for the people whom we believed were in that boat. Have you seen anyone in any sort of launch or small cruiser in the last couple of hours? Did you hear any explosion? We can't account for the wreckage we found."

The bearded Captain Van Steen shrugged his shoulders and looked at his second officer. "Sorry, we have not. We have sighted nobody. The people you are seeking, Lieutenant—they are, ah, are dangerous people."

The lieutenant said nothing, but his eyes moved easily over the deck. He felt a small pressure of the G-man's hand against his side.

"Mind if we take a quick look at your cargo, Captain?"

The captain raised his eyebrows slightly and shrugged again. "But of course not. I will send two men with you."

The lieutenant, the G-man and one of the sailors went with Van Steen's second officer and another man. Tay walked up forward to take an interested look at the immense anchor chain which was strung over the deck. Captain Van Steen watched him for a moment and then turned to talk to the other two sailors who stood near the Jacob's ladder.

Suddenly Tay straightened up, his eyes coming to rest on a winch a few feet down the deck. He stood looking down for a moment at the piece of bright colored wool cloth that was wrapped around a stake, half of it whipping in the wind. He bent down casually and fingered it, looking at the pattern. His brow furrowed as he straightened up again.

Tay sauntered back to the two sailors and Captain Van Steen. A few moments later the coast guard officer returned from his inspection. The lieutenant saluted. "Sorry to have troubled you, Captain, but I'm merely under orders to search every vessel between here and New York harbor."

Van Steen took his pipe out of his mouth and smiled toothily through his beard. "Of course," he murmured.

Neil sat watching Kurt Wilhelm closely. "Tell me, Wilhelm," Neil said. "Just how did it happen that this ship was nearby so conveniently?"

"I don't mind at all. This ship did not merely happen to be coming by. We were to stop Captain Van Steen to give him some verbal orders before his ship got to New York. I see no harm in telling you these things because—well, it will make no difference."

"So, he's one of your rats, eh?" Kurt's jaw muscles tightened visibly. "You are hardly in a position to be calling people names, my dear Mr. Lundquist."

"You're a rat, Wilhelm," Neil repeated evenly.

"You are taxing my generosity," Kurt said ominously. "You are not to be eliminated until we get to New York. However, if you insist, we can arrange it more quickly."

Suddenly there was a knock at the door. Kurt tensed. Then someone called to him in German and Kurt relaxed. He opened the door and spoke to a seaman.

"Your friends have left," Kurt said over his shoulder, slipping the silencer off his pistol and dropping it into his pocket. "Come."

But another sailor rushed up just then and spoke excitedly. Kurt frowned and cursed under his breath.

"Back inside, please," he said to Mollie and Neil. Mollie managed to whisper a few words to Neil as Kurt spoke again to the second sailor.

"The men from the coast guard are returning to the ship for some reason," she said quickly.

Kurt sat down, his hand resting on his gun butt inside his pocket. He eyed them coldly. Suddenly Neil remembered that Kurt had neglected to put the silencer back on his pistol.

THE DAILY STORY BRIGHT BOY

For one Brief Moment the Strange Girl Touched Him More Deeply than Any Woman Had Before (Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.)

BY ALICE DRAKE
It was in one of the joints on Clark and Chicago where I was having a short one at the bar and minding my own business when this good-looking blonde came up and sat down beside me. She sat so close I could smell the perfume in her hair. She wasn't more than 20, a tall, soft-spoken girl. She ordered a Tom Collins, then poked around in her bag and came up with a cigarette. She leaned over the bar for a match.

"Pardon the reach, Jack," she said.

"Quite all right. Here, let me give you a light," I offered.

"Thanks, Jacky," she said.

"The name's John," I said.

"Right smart name, John," she said.

"I'm glad you like it," I said. The way she showed her white teeth in a smile changed my mind about catching the next street car.

"Sure is," she said. She saw the books at my elbow. "What you reading?" she asked.

"Gogol's 'Tarantula' and Paffenberger, a Ph.D. and S.D.," I said.

"I've been called worse than that," she laughed.

I liked everything about her, and for the first time in my life I felt my insides mixing up over a woman.

"Drink up and have one on me," I said.

She ordered another Tom Collins. I walked over to the music box in the corner and pressed five levers down and pushed in the slot that sent the quarter clanging through the chute.

"I bet you're a writer," she said when I came back.

"What makes you say that?" I asked.

"Oh, I don't know. You look like a bright boy," she said.

"Quit pulling my leg," I said. We both laughed. She offered me a cigarette.

"I bet you are all right," she insisted.

"Cut it out," I said.

"Some day some girl's gonna get you. Girls like bright boys," she said.

"No time's better than now," I said, and looked into her large shiny eyes.

She smiled and said "You flatter me, Johnny."

My favorite song, "It Ain't Necessarily So," started to play. "Feel like cutting the rug?" I said.

"I'd be afraid to," she muttered.

"Afraid of me?" I asked.

"Afraid you might jitterbug me all over the place," she said.

"But I never do," I reassured her. "You sure talk their language," she laughed.

"I wish you'd stop kidding me," I said.

"Would it make you happy if I would?" she asked.

"It sure would," I said.

We both smiled and got up and walked toward the back where three couples were dancing. We swung into a two-step.

"You didn't even give me your name," I said.

"It's not that important, is it?" she laughed.

How about a good old-fashioned Sausage Supper?

Something to come home to! The rich and spicy fragrance of pork sausage browning in the skillet. Here are some of the things that go best with sausage:

Cottage fried potatoes	Scalloped corn
Applesauce	Cream gravy
Browned hominy	Glazed pineapple
Hot biscuits and apple butter	Orange slices
Cranberry jelly	Spiced cherries

Pork sausage links or patties, or country style links, are thrifty forms of sausage. Meal planners like them because they're good eating through and through. And they carry the B vitamins so abundant in all pork.

Cook slowly and thoroughly for real wholesome eating.

doubting me. "I bet you tell that to all the girls," she finally said. "I won't any more," I said. She squeezed me and planted her cheek against mine. "You're a nice kid, really nice," she said.

"There's a swell picture playing at the Crown tonight," I said.

"I got to go somewhere first," she said.

"I'll go with you," I said.

"Not where I'm going, Johnny," she said. "You can wait a half hour can't you?"

"It'll be like a half year," I said. We went back to our places. She slipped into her coat and walked out.

It was two hours before I realized she was never coming back. The bartender came up grinning and shaking his head.

"Look's like the girl friend's got ya' waitin'," he said.

"Yeah, called me a bright boy," I said, and walked out. I climbed

Dedicated to MAKING AMERICAN WINES THE WORLD'S BEST

American wines can be the world's best. America has the climate, soil, grapes, and vines. From then on, it becomes a matter of selection and handling. Back of the EMBROS dedication to making American wines the world's best is 106 years wine tradition—five generations of expert selection and skillful cellarization of wine. This knowledge and skill enables the House of Embros to select for EMBROS WINE only the cream of the crop from a chosen few of California's best vintners. It enables them then to cellarize these wines the patient, slow, and carefully devoted way for richer bouquet, velvety smoothness, and full body. This knowledge and skill has culminated in Royal Quality EMBROS WINES—in a variety of dry and sweet wines that critics say compare favorably at the price with any wines ever reduced here or abroad.

More Publicity Asked for State Fiscal Problems

Miles Wants Needs of Maryland Schools Bet- ter Understood

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 19 (AP) — More publicity should be given to the needs of Maryland's schools and institutions and other major fiscal problems confronting the governor before the state budget is compiled, State Treasurer Hooper Miles told the legislative council here.

The council invited Miles, Budget and Procurement Director Walter N. Kirkman, State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, Deputy Comptroller Joseph O. McCusker and Delegate Charles G. Lord (D-Baltimore county) to discuss budgetary problems and means of preparing the budget so it could be more easily understood by legislators and the public.

Miles said under the present system "members of the legislature and the general public don't know problems confronting the governor until the budget is presented to the general assembly."

Wants Public Discussion

Public discussion of these problems would enable legislators to get the reaction of their constituents, he declared. Kirkman explained that past governors have felt that they should not give budgetary data out for publication before the legislature receives it. He added, however, that he agreed with Miles' suggestion.

Some legislators, contending Maryland's budgets are hard to digest, favor a change in the state's fiscal year to give fiscal experts more time to compile the appropriations bill.

Both Miles and Kirkman advocate changing the fiscal year to run from July 1 to June 30 instead of from October 1 to September 30.

Miles said the proposed new fiscal year should be adopted while the state has "good cash balances." Senator Frank J. Flynn (D-Baltimore city) maintained the only "real answer to the problem is an annual legislative session" but Senator Wilmer Pell Davis (R-Caroline) declared:

Against Annual Session

"The reason why we don't have an annual session is because of the harm it would do. From taxpayers' standpoint, they'd probably rather have us meet every four years."

Tawes pointed out President Roosevelt was considering changing the federal government's fiscal year, now running from July 1 to June 30, to coincide with the calendar year.

Miles also recommended that a bureau of estimates be established under the department of budget and procurement to make a constant study of the trend of economics. He said the law requires the budget and procurement director to compile a tentative budget for the governor "and the budget director ought to be responsible for getting together all data on current expenditures."

Kirkman agreed with Miles.

Praises Maryland Budget

Kirkman said Maryland's budget now gives lawmakers and the public more fiscal information than budgets of many other states. He told council members he had studied budgets of forty states.

Only four of those states have annual budgets, he declared. Maryland is among the few states whose budgets follow a standard classification, list the number of state employees and their salaries and give the previous year's appropriations and expenditures on a comparative basis, he added.

Walter L. Hull Is Appointed Garrett County Roads Engineer

Cumberland Man Will Assume His Duties Monday

Will Have Charge of 1,050 Miles of Roads; Succeeds Alvin H. Wilson

OAKLAND, Feb. 19.—Appointment of Walter L. Hull, of Cumberland, as county roads engineer, was announced today by County Commissioners Paul M. Friend and Weston H. Browning.

Hull will assume his duties Monday, it was stated, and will fill the position temporarily occupied by Alvin H. Wilson. Wilson was made acting roads engineer when Robert Shekells resigned the position, and has spent the past several months in setting up the organization and getting road work under way.

Wilson expects to leave Oakland about March 1 and will return to Cumberland where he is a member of the Potomac Engineering and Construction Company.

Hull has been in the employ of the state roads commission as construction engineer for twelve years and was highly recommended. As roads engineer he will have charge of 1,050 miles of road.

There are about 1,200 miles of roads in Garrett county, according to Friend, and 720 miles of these roads were included in the county road system and were operated by the state until the maintenance was given back to county management as the result of legislation at Annapolis. This still leaves about 300 miles of roads that the county must look after in addition to the 730.

Highway from the States to Alaska Is Project That Awaits War's End

By WILLIAM A. BAKER, JR.
Central Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—With Japanese vessels reported in Alaskan waters, attention is drawn to the proposed Alaska highway which has been under consideration by the United States and Canada since 1929. The highway is advocated primarily to meet a situation which now seems imminent. Its proponents have contended that it would be badly needed as a supply line if sea lanes between Seattle and Alaska ports should be menaced by enemy warships or airplanes.

With from three to 15 years estimated as the time required for construction of the road, it does not seem likely that it could be utilized to aid Alaska in this war, even if work were commenced immediately. Such a highway has been favored by high government authority as a re-employment project after the war.

The United States would be expected to foot most of the bill. It is estimated that a gravel road safe for heavy loads would cost from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, the great disparity in estimates being due chiefly to diversity of country through which it is proposed to run the highway.

2,000-Mile Stretch

The distance by road from the United States-Canada boundary to Fairbanks, Alaska, would be about 2,000 miles. Three main routes have been considered—two from Seattle through British Columbia and one from Chicago through the prairie provinces and down the Mackenzie river valley in the north-west territories. All three enter Alaska from the Yukon territory. Gravel roads on these routes now end at Hazelton, B. C., Prince

Two proposed routes of the Alaska highway

George, B. C., and Grimshaw, Alta. The Alaskan International Highway commission, representing the United States, seems to favor the route from Seattle via Hazelton, and the British Columbia-Yukon-Alaska Highway commission, representing Canada, the more easterly route from Prince George via Sifton pass. Either would make possible the development of mineral and timber resources in British Columbia not reached by railway or steamship lines, and would surpass the Mackenzie valley route in scenic grandeur.

Among the persons who recommend the route from Chicago via the Mackenzie valley is Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famous Arctic explorer, who recently inspected various routes.

Arctic Pipeline

The most urgent need, however, according to Stefansson, is not several thousand miles of highway, but about 300 miles to serve as a sort of Arctic pipeline for moving oil and gasoline from a refinery at Norman to Mayo, Yukon Territory, on the Alaskan side of the continental divide. This road would enter the Canadian Rockies at or north of the Keele (Gravel) river, where the mountains are much lower than in southwestern Canada.

Alaska's entire supply of oil and gasoline has to be shipped in by ocean tanker. Consideration of the long line of communication by sea, and the importance of keeping the army's big air base at Fairbanks supplied with oil and gasoline, emphasize the explorer's view.

Stefansson's findings which convinced him that the Mackenzie route was the logical one for a highway between the United States and Alaska were: 1—It would cost the least; 2—could be completed most quickly; 3—would be most likely to be usable in winter; 4—would be safest from attack; 5—would provide a source of fuel.

Stefansson believes that it is desirable to construct highways eventually on both the routes in British Columbia and also connecting roads from the westernmost route to cities along the coast.

If all of the 35,000,000 homes in the United States were situated on thirty-foot lots on both sides of one Main street, the thoroughfare would have to be about 100,000 miles long—sufficient to girdle the earth four times around the equator; or stretch almost thirty-four times across the country, says the Census bureau.

And He Can't Buy A Car To Fit 'Em!

GRAFTON, W. Va. (AP)—E. H. Reppert has two brand new tires in his basement, but he's still one of the unhappiest men in West Virginia.

Last November, before there was any inkling of rubber rationing, he bought two casings against the day when those two slick ones on the rear wheels of his car would have to be replaced.

Came the January day when the treadless tires were ready for the discard, and Reppert gloatingly went down into the cellar—only to find that the dealer had given him the wrong size casings.

He carried his problem to state rationing headquarters. They were sympathetic, but cited a section of the rules prohibiting all traffic in new tires, whether selling, leasing, trading or transferring.

Simplification of industrial products will save essential materials and secure maximum efficiency in production, according to the department of Commerce.

Bedtime Scenes Young Child Can Be Averted

Parents Should Endeavor
To Win Co-operation from Youngster

GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.,
A child under eighteen months who is accustomed to being put to bed by the clock, goes with him. As his creative imagination develops and his enjoyment of the family grows, he may be unpleasant to put to bed. Then he will contrive all sorts of excuses for lingering longer.
To guide a developing child
he will experience no extreme resistance at bedtime or offer any resistance to a marked movement. It requires the very best skill and resourcefulness.
Some parents actually succeed at the critical moment is when the child is reminded that it is bedtime.

To avoid violent resistance then,
his momentary resistance to cooperation.

Winning Co-operation to win the child's co-operation requires abundant resources developed over weeks and months, in addition to perfect poise and self-control. Among these resources are the read to the child, conversed familiarly with him, answered his questions, encouraged his imagination, enjoyed his imaginary share in his improvised drama, celebrated his successes and his abundance of affection in a family atmosphere of security and love.

Any parent who would try to get a three-year-old child off to bed by riding him back might not succeed. It may be necessary to pick up the child and carry him to bed. Even such resources as diverting attention with the ride, might effect cooperation within a few minutes.

Diverting Attention
I saw a four-year-old boy carried to bed against his violence. But on the way his mother began to talk excitedly about the shoe, untying it. Almost instantaneously the child's co-operation followed. That mother was completely winning the whole procedure.

The parent with still fewer resources and less self-control might try to carry the resisting youngster to bed and let him cry it out.
Then, it is possible to build up the child's resources for future cooperation. While being late is costly when too late to make amends.
The special bulletin on helping the child and correct bedtime scenes has had without cost by writing to 235 East Forty-Fifth Street,
New York City, enclosing a self-adhesive envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems
I suppose the child from 2 to strongly dislikes having the parents go away from home. Are they justified in slipping out after he has gone to sleep?

A. No. He should know beforehand if they are going away, though this fact need not be emphasized. For him to awaken, even with other company, and discover his parents have stolen away is a shock to him. He feels he has been deceived and deserted.

Things To Come

BOULDER, Colo. (P)—Mindful of the rationing and automobile curtailment, Councilman William T.
Hollen solemnly took the floor on meeting night after someone had proposed a street should be widened.
"Isn't that street wide enough for bicycles?" inquired Hollen.

Death Rate of Men, Women in Some Diseases Compared by Physician

LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D., does not know whether it is a fact that is stronger among doctors than other people, but it is certainly strong among them to say, when they have a patient with a certain condition, "Well, I hope I never get that," or, "I hope I don't die from that."

While, of course, nobody can tell in an individual instance, statistical tables are able to give you a rough idea of your chances of dying of one or another kind of disease. The two principal factors which determine this in most diseases are age and sex.

Accidents are the least variable. If you are a white female, you have exactly the same chance of dying of an accident when you are one day old as when you are seventy years old. The line runs straight across. You are just as liable, and no more so, at the ages of ten, twenty, thirty, forty, or fifty. A white male has the same chance of getting killed in an accident at the age of thirty, forty, fifty or sixty as a white female. Up to the age of ten he runs more risk.

Age a Factor
In disease of the heart, kidneys and blood pressure, age is a great factor and sex plays a very little part. The chance of death from any of these conditions is very small up to the age of twenty, it rises slightly from the ages of twenty to thirty and then takes a sharp turn upward so that at the age of sixty in both males and females, the chances are about 625 per 1,000 population that when you die you will die from one of this group of diseases.

Cancer has both an age and a sex distribution. Chances of dying of some malignant tumor are about the same in the male and in the female up to the age of twenty. After that the female far outruns the male. After the age of fifty, chances of a male's dying of cancer decrease but the female's remain about the same, the proportion being 125 to 1,000.

Tuberculosis shows an age distribution, but just the opposite of cancer. The worst period is from birth to the age of twenty. In both the male and female, at this age period, the chances are about twenty-five out of 1,000 that you will die of tuberculosis. After that there is a sharp drop so that at the age of sixty, chances are about six out of 1,000 that you will die of tuberculosis.

Women and Diabetes
Diabetes is, for some reason, a little more chancey in the female than in the male. The chance of a female up to the age of twenty-five dying of diabetes is about 35 out of 1,000, while those of a male are about twenty out of 1,000.

Well, there you are. You really haven't very much choice in the matter. You are more likely in this year of grace, even with war destruction, to die old than young. But somewhere out there the Forces over which you have no control are stacking the cards and you are going to have to take your medicine when your number comes up.

Questions and Answers
A. M.—Will you please explain what "hypertension" means and what should be done to relieve this condition.

Answer: Hypertension means high blood pressure. It is usually considered to be a blood pressure over 150 mm. of mercury. The only valuable treatment is the regulation of life so that anything which causes tension and spasm of the arteries will be eliminated.

M. H.—What is the cause of occasional discharges of light brown specks or small lumps from the throat followed by bloody sputum? I had a negative reaction in a recent tuberculosis test.

Answer: Probably chronic follicular tonsillitis with the discharge of cheesy plugs from the crypts of the tonsils.

Relief At Last For Your Cough

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. Counter-Espionage Is Theme of Liberty Film

Today's new picture at the Liberty theater is "Dangerously They Live," starring John Garfield, Nancy Coleman and Raymond Massey in a story that fully lives up to its exciting title. The thrill-packed film tells about the extraordinary adventures of a pair of everyday young Americans who defy danger to track down Uncle Sam's secret enemies. Besides the three starring players the cast includes such notables as Moroni Olsen, Lee Patrick, Esther Dale, Ben Weiden and many others.

"Dangerously They Live" tells the story of a pair of young Americans who foil the plot of an enemy spy ring and thus save a whole fleet of ships bound for Britain from destruction by enemy submarines. The girl, who is employed by a British export company, is kidnapped by the spy ring, but is injured in a traffic accident. Taken to a hospital, she confides her plight to the interne who is taking care of her, and persuades him to help her. When a man appears and claims her as his daughter, she agrees to go home with him, knowing that it is the only way she can find out about the workings of the spy ring. The interne goes with her, and the two find themselves virtual prisoners on a big country estate. Various attempts are made to get the girl to give them the information they want. She does so at last, but gives them false information, even though she knows it will cost her life. The interne makes a daring escape from his captors, comes to her rescue, and together the two of them get information to the British forces at Halifax in time to have the enemy submarine flotilla blown to bits.

Reputation of Comedian Hard to Live Down

Being a funny man is harder to live down than a term at Alcatraz, says Reginald Gardiner, currently featured in "Captains of the Clouds," now at the Strand theater. Gardiner, a young man with an international reputation for the quaint quip, the imitation of railroad engine whistles, and the anecdote that lays them in the aisles, has renounced comedy for serious reasons.

One of his most logical statements is that he is disgusted with being at the beck of motion picture directors who say:

"This scene needs some comedy."

THE TANKS ARE COMING

The picture which opens at the Liberty theater today, describes the training program of the Armored Divisions of the United States Army and features actual war maneuvers of thousands of tanks, jeep cars and motorized infantry. Featured in the short are George Tobias and Richard Travis.

ONE FIGHT--COMING UP

Alan Hale, Brenda Marshall, Dennis Morgan and James Cagney in a scene which looks like the warmup for a battling good fight. The movie is "Captains of the Clouds," now at the Strand.

Have Reggie run in and make a funny face.

"Look," said Gardiner, "Being a comedian sinks a man into the deepest rut in pictures. Talk about the dangers of being 'typed'! Once you get a reputation of some sort as a comic, you're done for. You have to go on being funny."

Loses "Friend" Family Does Act

Life seemed dark indeed for the jovial, kindly Abner Weaver when his best friend stole the vaudeville act he had spent years perfecting. But Abner, with his brother Cleo and the latter's wife Elvira, concocted another act which was such a hit that the Weavers' future was assured.

Today, while the pirate, who stole his original act is now languishing in a theatrical home, the Weavers are famous all over the country. Their latest picture for Republic is "Tuxedo Junction," which is now showing at the Embassy theater. Lorna Gray and Clayton Moore have the romantic leads, with Sally Payne supplying her particular hoyden brand of comedy. Frankie Darro, Ken Lundy and Billy Benedict are also featured in the cast of the picture.

After wearing more than a half million dollars worth of clothes in twenty years she was a star of the American and European stage. Judith Anderson wears wardrobe costing less than $25 in the title role of RKO Radio's "Lady Scarface," now at the Garden.

As an underworld criminal, embittered because of a ghastly scar on her left cheek, Miss Anderson wears a scrub-woman's working garb in one sequence; a cheap street dress in another and tops this with a shoddy coat and hat in another. That is the extent of her wardrobe for the character.

Hepburn's Role Is A Tongue-Twister!

Katharine Hepburn found that playing the role of an international columnist in "Woman of the Year," now showing at the Maryland theater, was a tongue-twisting job. For several weeks, she had long daily sessions with four language teachers, who instructed her in the proper pronunciation of Spanish, Russian, French, Slovenian, Chinese, Greek and Yiddish.

She had long speeches in each of the foreign languages. In several pages of script, for a scene in which she entertained noted foreign personages, Miss Hepburn had to skip from language to language.

Wresting with the various accents, Miss Hepburn was wishing, before she was through, that she had majored in languages at Bryn Mawr, instead of graduating a Doctor of Philosophy.

"Woman of the Year" was written by Ring Lardner, Jr. and Michael Kanin especially for Miss Hepburn, and she stipulated in accepting the role that Tracy co-star. The story presents her as a newspaper columnist, with Tracy as sports editor. What begins as a duel of wits between them develops into a romance.

The hauling capacity of trucks on American highways is about fifty times greater now than in 1917.

Sentimental Railroad

PITSEA, England (AP)—Because a little girl was heard crying, a train was stopped soon after leaving sea. The girl had dropped her bag on the track and the train held until it was found.

Free air, available at service stations, was a luxury only the rich could buy in 1907.

Woman, Married Fifteen Years, Seeks New Life

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX—Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

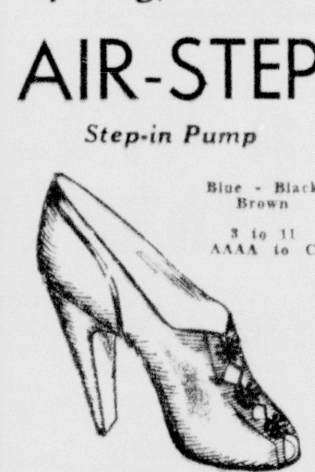

"After fifteen years of marriage my husband has left me," writes "Unhappy," all on account of a girl twenty-five years his junior. He is 48 and I am 43. Extremely handsome and charming, he is also selfish and self-centered. For ten years I've watched him carrying on with other women, and because he was my whole life I wouldn't let him go. However, I've grown tired of the struggle and when he asked for a divorce two months ago I agreed. "I've supported myself for twenty years and receive a fine salary. I've paid for furniture, rent, food and living expenses. I know he must be making somewhere around $300 a month, but I've never pried into his affairs. He's fond of horse races and so I presume a lot of his money has gone in that direction," the letter states.

"My reason for writing is that I can't think clearly any longer and don't know whether I can continue living. I have no family, no children, and few friends. My work and my husband were all that I wanted, and while I know how foolish that was, I feel it may be too late for a different outlook on life," says "Unhappy."

STAR-DIRECTOR CONFERENCE

Director George Stevens goes over a scene of "Woman of the Year" with its stars, Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn, which is currently showing at the Maryland theater. Stevens and Miss Hepburn are old friends, the director having guided her some years ago in "Alice Adams."

Moving Is Recommended
"I have about fifteen hundred dollars. I don't believe I'm going to be able to live in this city much longer. I'm filled with shame that I fought so long to hold someone who made it so obvious he didn't want me. I tell myself that when all this is over I'm going to be happier and that our separation was the best thing that's happened to me in years. But it doesn't help me," she concludes.

Your idea of moving to another city is excellent. In a new environment you will not meet at every turn people and things which remind you of your unhappiness. Awakened memories are like pressure on a bruise and only prevent the hurt from healing. At the moment an anguished world is crying aloud for every pair of helpful hands. And these are yours to give. Intelligent, experienced, able to earn a good salary, your employer, if he understands your circumstances, will be glad to recommend you to someone in another city.

Hobby Might Help
As a bread-winner you will not, of course, be able to give your entire time to war work. Any government agency would be glad to enroll you as a volunteer, and in doing this work you will make new contacts and, I hope, lasting friends. What appeals to you? Work for the Red Cross? Have you organizing ability? Do you like to sew, cook, care for children, or take upon yourself air-raid shelter duties? Do the thing you like best and decline to be a round peg in a square hole, no matter how strongly someone in an authoritative uniform may try to shove you.

Indulge yourself in some hobby. We're all better for our hobbies. Do you enjoy dancing? Dramatics? Photography? Gymnasium work or Sunday hiking? All these things furnish escape, and escape down some pleasant lane is your goal at the present time. Whatever you decide to do, keep out of the past. Here's hoping you'll forget your past unhappiness and find someone really worthy of the fidelity and unselfishness you have shown through this ordeal.

LaSalle Host To Johnstown Quint Tonight

Allegany Sextet Seeks WMI Title In Contest Here

Explorers, Idle over a Week, Should Defeat Pennsylvanians

LaSalle High's Explorers, idle since defeating Ridgeley on February 11, will resume action after a layoff of more than a week tonight at 8 o'clock on the SS, Peter and Paul school court.

Coach "Pat" Conway's Blue and Gold hoopers, undefeated in sixteen games this season, will tangle with the Johnstown (Pa.) Catholic high combination in a return engagement. The Explorers copped the first clash between the clubs at Johnstown, 41-14, and will be favored to repeat.

Two other scholastic games are scheduled here tonight. The Allegany high teams will oppose Beall high outfit of Frostburg in a return Western Maryland Interscholastic League doubleheader at Campobello with the West Side girls seeking the WMI championship and the Blue and White boys at least a tie for the title.

Central's Boys in Running

Allegany registered a double victory over Beall at Frostburg, the boys winning 45-28 and the girls, 29-14, and will be favored to repeat. The Campobello sextet has copped eight straight loop battles while the Allegany boys have won seven of eight, having only to Central.

If Allegany loses tonight, or wins tonight and bows to Port Hill next Tuesday when the WMI races draw to a close, Central's boys would stand a good chance of tying for the crown as the Coney crew will be favored over Bruce next week in its final battle. The defeat by Central trimmed Allegany's margin in the boys' division to one game.

All local teams with the exception of Port Hill's girls, will be in action tonight. The Sentinel quint, already in possession of the Cumberland Valley Athletic League championship, will close its campaign in that loop against Handley's Judges at Winchester. A win over Handley would give Port Hill a clean sweep in the OVAL. The Judges lost 30-23 to the Sentinels in a previous meeting here.

Ridgeley After Revenge

Coach Bill Hahn's Ridgeleyites will be seeking revenge for a 23-22 loss to Piedmont on the latter's floor while Keyser, still in the running for conference honors, holds a 36-20 decision over Moorefield and should sweep the two-game series. Parsons should win over Thomas while Mathias is favored over Bayard.

Other schoolboy games tonight are Grantsville at Meyersdale, Wardensville at Paw Paw, Romney at Ashby, Boyce at Capon Bridge, Berkeley Springs at Harpers Ferry and Hagerstown at Martinsburg in a CVAL tussle.

Potomac State's Catamounts, one of the district's two collegiate teams, will entertain the West Liberty (W. Va.) Hilltoppers at Keyser tonight.

Tomorrow night's six-game card is featured by LaSalle's return encounter with the Frostburg State College Payees in the preliminary to the Frostburg State-Shepherd collision at Frostburg. Other contests tomorrow are Franklin at Circleville in the conference, Kingwood at Keyser, Thomas at Tygart's Valley of Mill Creek, W. Va., and Romney at Central.

University of Maryland Joins Eastern College Boxing Association

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Feb. 18 (AP)—The University of Maryland has accepted an invitation to join the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association and a similar bid is under consideration by Virginia Tech athletic authorities, it was learned here today.

Maryland will enter a full team of eight fighters in the association's nineteenth annual tournament at the University of Virginia here March 6 and 7, when the Cavaliers will be host to the meet for the first time.

W. L. Younger, V. P. L. Athletic director, took the invitation to join the Eastern Association under consideration pending consultation with members of Tech's boxing squad.

North Carolina declined a similar invitation. Syracuse, defending team champion, will meet the Virginia boxers here Saturday night.

Other members of the eastern team are Army, Penn State, Western Maryland and the Coast Guard Academy.

Gee Is Six Feet, Eight Inches Of Worry for Buc Pilot Frisch

By JOHN LARDNER

A close observer will find many gray hairs festooning the outer fringe of the scalp of Francis F. Frisch, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates and well-known potential bridge-jumper.

Each gray hair represents a worry or a sorrow, secret of other-wise, and for each worry or sorrow Mr. Frisch has selected a bridge in or around Pittsburgh from which to jump in case the sadness of life overcomes him.

Odds Against Jumping

Gambler's will offer you 8 to 1, however, that Mr. Frisch will never jump. They describe him as a very ordinary species of potential bridge-jumper—the kind who looks as though he would jump, and frequently toys with the notion, but never gets around to it because his capacity for absorbing sorrow is so great.

On hearing this point of view expressed, Mr. Frisch merely laughs bitterly.

"Little do they suspect the things I have to put up with," he says. "In a world full of pitchers with dead arms and umpires with eye trouble, it's a wonder I don't go right out and jump tomorrow morning, at 4 a. m., which, as all us connoisseurs agree, is the only fitting and proper time to leap from a bridge. Maybe I will," says Mr. Frisch, looking thoughtfully at his watch.

Nonetheless, the odds continue to be 8 to 1 against.

One of the gray hairs on the head of Mr. Frisch represents a problem named John Gee. This is the longest gray hair on the Frisch scalp, because it represents the longest problem. Mr. Gee, if I recall correctly, stands six feet eight inches in height. He is a left-handed pitcher, at least, that's what it said in the catalogue when Pittsburgh bought him.

The Pirates bought him two years ago for $75,000, which, as I have previously reckoned, amounts to $37.50 a linear inch. Mr. Gee has yet to win a ball game in Pittsburgh livery. Naturally, this causes Mr. Frisch and his employees deep concern.

I see that Mr. Gee, in Syracuse, N. Y., recently signed his contract for 1942. As soon as the news reached Mr. Frisch, that long gray hair began to vibrate like the tail of a rattlesnake. He had forgotten about Mr. Gee for the nonce. On being reminded of the young man's existence, Mr. Frisch immediately began to worry on a new track.

"Gee, eh?" said Francis. "Oh, woe is me."

At this time of year, however, a sort of vernal hopefulness fills Mr. Frisch's bosom and keeps him off the bridges for days at a time. He says to himself, "Gee has had a dead arm for two years, and there is still a deep, aching abscess in our cash box where the $75,000 used to be, but maybe the arm will turn round this spring. And if it does—"

I doubt if Mr. Frisch goes further than this, even in his thoughts. But he is human, and no baseball manager who is human can resist hankering for just one pennant—one more pennant, in Mr. Frisch's case, for his "Gashouse Gang" in St. Louis won the flag and the world championship in 1934.

Mr. John Gee, before his left arm was attacked by this strange dose of morbidity, had the look of a pitcher who could help win pennants. His height and his speed of delivery were baffling to the hitters of the better class of minor league. You know his record and his prospects were good for him without making more than a mild murmur of protest.

No sooner was the ink dry on the check, however than Mr. Gee's business arm went dead indeed and Mr. Frisch's longest hair turned gray. Personally, it has always been my suspicion that Mr. Frisch would not be content, down deep in his heart, if he did not have the John Gee's of this world to worry about. A worry needs worries.

Mr. Frisch, of course, denies this argument violently.

"Nobody can imagine my worries," he says. "Say, I ran across a sweet new bridge the other day. It's a little job, about twenty feet clearance—" North American Newspaper Alliance.

Chestertown Will Build New Track

CHESTERTOWN, Md., Feb. 19 (AP)—Work on a new harness racing track will start shortly and the first race program is scheduled to be held May 20.

Oscar Roe, president of the new track association, said that part of the farm of Mrs. Margaret Massey on Riverside drive would be leased for three years for a track. The track will take the place of Radcliffe Driving Park, which will be the site of Chestertown's new munitions plant. The new track location was formerly the Kent county fair grounds.

George Sutton, veteran trainer at Radcliffe Park, will be in charge.

Jenkins Booted His Title Away, Martin Declares

Writer Believes Boxer's Reforming, If Any, Is Too Late

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (Wide World)—Lew Jenkins has remarked he expected to end up driving a truck, an eventuality which seems a little unfair. Unfair to the truck, that is, as Lew Jenkins hasn't been able to handle Lew Jenkins on two feet, let alone Lew Jenkins with wheels under him.

Here's a young fellow who was handed a ring championship on a gold platter, yet through disinclination to train or improve himself kicked it around like it was a soccer ball until he finally booted it out of sight.

Not that we're sure Lew could have beaten Sammy Angott at any time. Maybe he couldn't if he had gone to bed at 8 o'clock every night and tried to learn there was more to boxing than just curling up a right fist somewhere near the floor and letting fly.

But the point is that he didn't try to take care of himself, or to learn, and today, two or three days after his meeting with Marty Servo, he is the picture of a beaten fighter, in technicolor, with that truck driving job just that much closer.

Won Ambers' Title

We first noted Jenkins when he knocked out China Alvarez in Dalar in time which would be pretty good for the 100-year dash. We thought that was quite something, and said so. From Dallas bounced back the charge that the victory was too good to be true, the intimation being that Alvarez might have been knocked out, but only because his head hit the bottom of the tank.

Naturally this was indignantly denied by all concerned, as who ever heard of such goings-on in the fight game, and besides, you can't prove it.

Anyway, we first met Jenkins in Mike Jacobs' office. Hymie Caplin had him in tow. We found Lew a scrawny, hawk-featured individual with indifferent coloring and pale, cold eyes. His conversation was confined to truculent grunts, possibly because Hymie was doing the talking for everybody within six miles.

He piled up quite a string of knockouts in these parts before he was given his shot at Lou Ambers' title. Ambers had been slowing down, and was ready to be taken. The bouncing, jiggling, grinning little gnome was just a shadow of a once fine fighter, and Jenkins stopped him in three rounds, connecting with roundhouse rights the Ambers of old would have welcomed as fans in a hot hall.

He repeated against Ambers several months later, although Ambers stuck around until the seventh round and at times made Jenkins look like a novice.

Didn't Need to Train

Jenkins was the champion, or at least so recognized here, and he felt his oats. He was tough, and cocky, and believed all that was written about him being a mean, hard, contrary critter.

He didn't need to train. No sir. He was tough. Learn to box? Silly business, boxing. Just go in there and pop them on the lug. He was a fighter, just a fighter.

He wasn't quite enough of a fighter to stand up before Henry Armstrong, but that didn't change his mind. He stuck to the night club route, to galavanting around the country on a motorcycle, to getting mixed up in sordid brawls.

He won some fights, and against good men, including Pete Lello, and Bob Montgomery, and he drew with Fritz Zivic.

But he was burning the candle from all directions, and now his reforming, if any, has come too late.

Maybe he wasn't fooling when he said he expected to end up driving up a truck.

FOR THE GAME'S SAKE

By LAWRENCE PERRY

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Harvard and Yale eight oar crews will probably receive an invitation to participate in the annual four-mile regatta on the Hudson river at Poughkeepsie.

Tentative plans for this regatta now under consideration include a bid for the Crimson and Elis whose classic regatta at New London has been abandoned for next June and in all probability for the duration of the war.

Asa S. Bushnell, executive director of the Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, is proceeding upon assumption that the Poughkeepsie race will be held.

"We may," he says, "have to adapt ourselves to war conditions. In fact there is no doubt about that. But in the probable absence of Coast Guard vessels to keep the course clear and in view of other handicaps to be faced we will do the best we can. Whether or not Yale and Harvard, one or both, would see their way clear to accepting an invitation is a matter of course, upon which I cannot speak. But certainly we would like to see them on the Hudson."

Invitations to non-members of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association, Bushnell says, will shortly be transmitted and in the meantime the attitude of member institutions will be canvassed.

Yale and Harvard

The abandonment of the four-mile regatta on the Thames was due to the fact that the river has been pretty much given over to naval development. The stream is filled with all sorts of craft including submarines and in general the presence of the large fleet that usually attends this regatta would probably be undesirable while the route of the oarsmen would not likely be in clear water.

Instead of the usual four mile race the Crimson and Blue will hold their regatta over a two mile course on the Housatonic river at Derby, Conn., a somewhat tortuous course but otherwise well adapted to the racing of eight oar shells.

It will be recalled that last year Harvard had a crew regarded by experts as the equal to any in the country. Many, including Harvard aquatic enthusiasts, would like to have seen their boat in competition against Washington and California among others at Poughkeepsie. This year Harvard is expected to boat another fine eight and if this proves to be the case rowing men of the Cambridge university might be expected to favor a four mile test of the Hudson.

As a matter of fact evidence of past years establishes an impression that when any one of the two new London eights has shown great ability regret has always existed among graduates and the rowing public generally that the outstanding crew of the Thames river should not appear at Poughkeepsie. So response to any invitation sent to New Haven and Cambridge this year would probably depend for acceptance upon the showing of the

Crimson and Yale shells in earlier races

Durocher Pleased With Dodgers

HAVANA, Feb. 19.—The Brooklyn Dodgers opened their spring training today and right away Manager Leo Durocher confided in booming words "they're the kind of a ball club I been looking for."

This all-out—if it was—observation came after Durocher demanded: "Didn't you see the way they got into that one-hour practice? Why, they didn't wait for somebody to tell them to run. They did it themselves. It's guys like that it takes to win."

"They got the kind of spirit that gets them in there scrapping. I'll miss some of the boys, particularly Wasdell. He was that kind of a player, and I'd never trained him if I didn't have to."

He was talking about the deal with Pittsburgh that brought Arky Vaughan to the Dodgers.

But he admitted that sometimes the fighting spirit got out of hand. "I'm going to try," he said, "to get Johnny Rizzo to stop storming at the people—to let the public alone. I don't care how much he storms at the players, or me, but the public—that's different."

Durocher confessed he was going to do a lot of "looking at the pitchers" which brought up the painful matter of the absence of hurlers Kirby Higbe and Whitlow Wyatt, who are not in camp. It was a ban against players' wives in camp that kept Higbe in Miami. Wyatt is a holdout, as is also outfielder Fred (Dixie) Walker. Durocher had "no word" about them.

The Dodgers' scarcity of left-handed pitchers made chances look good for Robert Chipman, 22, a southpaw from the Atlanta club. However the two newcomers with the best chances of sticking are Eddie Head and Chester Kehn, from the Dodgers' Montreal farm. Durocher said some people thought Head didn't improve much at Montreal, "but the guy won 18 ball games and you can't laugh that off."

MILWAUKEE (AP)—"Remember Pearl Harbor" is a very much personalized slogan for Gil Larson, Jr., sophomore sprinter on the Marquette University track team. Bruce Boys Upset Fort Hill 32-29 While Sentinel Girls Win 34 to 10

Westernport Cagers' Defense Holds Locals to One Goal in First Half

Fort Hill high's basketball team split a Western Maryland Interscholastic League doubleheader with outfalls representing Bruce high of Westernport tonight on the Sentinel's home floor with Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh's boys suffering a stunning 32-29 upset at the hands of the visiting quint in the thrilling nightcap after the Scarlet and White lassies captured the opening tilt from Bruce by a 34-10 count.

The victory for the Sentinel girls enabled them to retain a slim chance of gaining a tie for loop honors with the league-leading Allegany high sextet. A loss at the hands of Beall tomorrow night for Allegany and a win by Fort Hill over the Camper crew in the final contest next Tuesday would bring about the deadlock in the girls' division of the W. M. I. league, however, a victory for Allegany's girls in either of these clashes would give them the championship.

Sentinel Rally Falls Short

A smashing last half rally by Fort Hill almost took the game out of the fire after they trailed the visiting Bruce team for nearly three full quarters. The tight defense of the Westernport outfit held the Sentinels to a lone field goal in the initial two quarters, out the great scoring outburst by the Hilltoppers in the last two stanzas literally had the winners hanging on the ropes.

Bruce hopped off to a quick 4-0 lead in the first quarter and maintained its advantage until Edwin Decker's goal in the final twenty seconds of the third quarter tied the score for the Sentinels. Bruce led 6-4 at the close of the first period and held a five-point margin over Fort Hill at 14-9 at halftime.

The Scarlet and White quint suddenly found the range in the third period and, sparked by Decker, outscored Bruce fourteen to nine to knot the figures at 23-23 as the period ended. The count changed hands twice and the score was tied three times at 23-25, 27-27, and 29-29 in the hard-fought last quarter before William Gardner's 10-0 with less than two minutes to play and Charles McGowan's two-point in the last thirty seconds clinched the victory for Bruce.

The Westernport team, sparked by McGowan who tallied twelve counters on six goals, outscored the Sentinels fourteen to nine from the field but Fort Hill remained very much in the running throughout the contest by caging eleven of nineteen free throws to the visitors' four of seven.

Decker paced the losers with eleven points on four goals—three of which came in the third quarter—and three of six charity tosses. Decker's running mate, George Hinkle, followed closely behind with six tallies, while Donald Derham's eight tallies came at opportune times in the rough, hard-fought game for Bruce.

Betty Cage Leads Girls

Coach Beatrice Lowe's Fort Hill girls, in ringing up their seventh league triumph in nine starts, led all the way with the quarter score being 10-3, 22-7 and 29-9. Betty Cage paced the Sentinel lassies with thirteen tallies while Geraldine Wilkinson scored half of Bruce's four points. The lineups:

Hogan's Favored To Win Golf Tournament

Topheavy Choice To Capture New Orleans Open

City Park Course Is Ideal Layout for the Long Hitters

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19 (AP)—Little Ben Hogan has been installed a topheavy favorite in the $5,000 New Orleans Open Golf Tournament starting tomorrow, but the past winners believe there are several other horses in the race—including themselves.

One thing all agree on, however, is that it will take somebody who can really sock to pocket the $1,000 first prize money. The level, 6,645-yard city park course is ideal for long hitters.

Hogan Is Favorite
New Orleans sports writers all pick Hogan as the man to beat. A survey of local golfers showed Ben away out in front, with Sam Snead second, several lengths behind.

All consider the 135-pound Texan's long record of consistency a better indicator than Henry Picard's feat in winning two of the three tournaments he has played here and the fact that he holds the course record of 65.

Picard himself declared:
"Your guess is as good as mine. But it will take a good golfer to do it—somebody like Ben Hogan, Sam Snead or Byron Nelson. It won't be any dark horse. As for myself—I'm not hitting any too well."

Cooper Picks Hogan
Harry Cooper of Chicago, winner of the first New Orleans open in 1938, picked Hogan, Snead, Nelson or that just-arrived star from Battle Creek, Chick Harbert.

"I'm hitting the ball pretty well," said Harry, "and might do all right if I can get started."
Jimmy Demaret, Texan transplanted to Michigan who won six out of nine major events on the winter swing two seasons back said, "Picard and Snead are my choices, but you can't overlook Nelson and Hogan."

"I'm hitting the ball better than I ever was before. If I have some luck and my putting improves maybe I'll have a chance too."

Mazzitis Leads Thomas To Win

His Nine Goals Too Much for Moorefield Basket-eers; Score 43 to 29

THOMAS, W. Va., Feb. 19—The local high school cagers took an early lead over Moorefield, W. Va. high basketballers here tonight and led all the way for a 43 to 29 win.
Mazzitis, clever Thomas forward, led both teams in scoring when he dumped nine field goals through the hoops and his teammates scored anywhere from one to five points to make victory sure.

Bean and Hott, Moorefield hoopers, made a valiant effort with five goals each but none of their teammates were able to score more than one goal and this doomed them to defeat. In the third quarter, Moorefield came within six points of the leading outfit but Mazzitis came through with several goals and it was all over.

Yankee Shortstop Thinks He Will Have Good Year

Phil Rizzuto Will Not Be Bothered by Stage Fright or Jitters

ST. PETERSBURG Fla., Feb. 19 (AP)—Having successfully run the gauntlet of stage fright and the usual assortment of jitters which beset a rookie breaking into the major leagues, Phil Rizzuto, the pint-sized New York Yankee shortstop, figures his sophomore year, 1942, should be a good one.

"I think playing last season with the Yankees has made me 100 per cent a better ball player," declared Rizzuto today, shortly after arriving here to doctor a cold which has been bothering him all

Funeral Notice

LAPPEY—Mrs. Margaret Ann (Noone), aged 87, wife of the late James P. Lappey, died at her home, 102 Grand Avenue, Tuesday, February 17th. Funeral Mass Saturday, 9 A. M., St. Mary's Catholic Church. Interment in St. Patrick's Cemetery. Arrangements by St. Patrick's Funeral Service. 2-19-17-TN

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Bertha C. Brinkman, who died one year ago, February 20, 1941.
God saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb,
One gently closed her lovely eyes,
And whispered "Peace, be thine."
Her weary hours, her days of pain,
Her weary nights are past,
Her ever-patient work-out time,
Has found sweet rest at last.

Voters To Decide Auxiliary Water Line Bond Issue

Passage of $500,000 Issue Will Not Increase Rates, Bruce Declares

A $500,000 bond issue, known as "Water Improvement Bonds of 1941," will be submitted to the voters of Cumberland for their ratification or rejection when they cast their ballots in the biennial municipal election to be held Tuesday, March 17.

This large item has been overshadowed because of the much publicized referendum pertaining to the four-year plan for mayor and council which will appear on the same ballot, but those supporting it say it is because it concerns the construction of an auxiliary water line from Lake Gordon to the City of Cumberland.

Introduced by Sleeman

This bill was introduced in the Maryland House of Delegates last spring by Delegate Jonathan Sleeman of Frostburg. It passed the House and also was approved by the Senate after a referendum was tacked thereon, leaving it entirely up to the electorate to approve or reject it at the polls at the 1942 general election. If the referendum had not been attached the act would have taken effect on June 1, 1941.

The sharp rise in consumption of water attributed to expanded production and increased population since the present line from Lake Gordon to Cumberland was built twenty-eight years ago is the reason why the mayor and council sought authority to borrow the sum of $500,000 for the purpose of paying expenses incident to the construction of the water supply.

Line Needed, Bruce Says

Charles J. Bruce, superintendent of Cumberland's source of water supply in nearby Bedford county, Pa., in stressing the necessity of an auxiliary line points out that in the past thirteen years consumption has increased from five and one half to eight and one half million gallons daily; that in the past year alone the increase was twelve per cent and that such a project is essential because the present pipe line is carrying a supply up to ninety per cent of capacity.

Tracing the beginning of Cumberland's good water supply back to 1913, Bruce said that the first water piped in from Lake Gordon was through a thirty-six inch wood stave line which functioned until 1924 when it was replaced by thirty-six inch reinforced concrete pipe.

No Increase in Rates

If the voters do approve of the $500,000 bond issue what will be the cost to the taxpayers of Cumberland was the question put to Bruce.

"No cost whatsoever over the present water rates," the superintendent of the Everts Creek Water Company replied.

Bruce called attention to the fact that the city paid off a $469,000 bond issue in October, 1941, and that additional revenue is coming into the city's coffers as a result of 100 additional water users being placed on the books since the bond issue was paid off.

Under provisions of the act, the mayor and council are authorized to issue bonds to the amount of $500,000.

Mercury Plummets As Winter Crushes Spring Offensive

Cumberland Shivers as Chill Winds Push Temperature near Zero

King Winter reigned supreme in the Cumberland area yesterday after crushing spring's attempted sneak offensive with a vicious counter-attack which sent the mercury spiraling down thirty-six degrees in a sudden ignominious retreat.

After having enjoyed several days of balmy weather, citizens of the section were jolted into remembrance that winter was still here when the temperature plunged from Wednesday's high of forty-eight to a low of twelve early yesterday, the sudden drop taking place in a twelve-hour period.

The temperature rose somewhat during the day under a warm sun, but chill winds caused Cumberlanders to turn up their coat collars and stoke their furnaces.

During the afternoon, the mercury hovered around twenty-five but as the sun went down it began dropping, hitting fifteen by 11 p. m., and indications were that it would plummet to a new low for the month during the night. The weather man prophesied sub-zero temperatures for Western Maryland.

The sudden cold snap was in marked contrast to last Sunday's spring-like weather, when the mercury climbed to a high of fifty-eight. Low for the month is eight degrees, recorded February 2.

Generally lower temperature prevailed, as usual, west of Cumberland, with two below zero recorded on Big Savage mountain at midnight Wednesday. Early last night, the reading was six above.

At Frostburg, the temperature dropped thirty-four degrees from thirty-nine at 5 p. m. to five above in the early morning hours. Last night, it was eight above.

Game Wardens Offer Services

O'Connor Praises Association Members for Voluntary Action

Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor this week commended members of the Allegany County Game Wardens Association for their action in placing themselves at his disposal for defense duty and forwarded their offer to Vincent P. Ingram, county director of civilian defense.

The association, in a letter to the governor, had pointed out that its twenty-five members, many of them veterans of World War I, were all trained in the use of firearms and available for duty in the defense program.

In advising the group that he was forwarding the offer to Ingram, O'Connor noted that it is necessary to mesh all units into the county organization so that there will be "no over-lapping or conflict of authority" and in order that "the defense movement proceed through carefully arranged channels."

The governor expressed the hope that the association's "generous offer" would be availed upon in some manner "consistent with the general activities of the civilian defense efforts."

Officials of the association said last night that Ingram had advised them he would gladly assign them to duty in the county defense organization.

Recent Robberies Here Are Solved By Officers

Youths Admit Robbing Home; Men Help Steal Brass, Condon Says

City and B. and O. railroad police yesterday solved two recent robberies in Cumberland.

Last Sunday the home of Mason Sisk, of 121 Elder street, was entered through the cellar and three watches, a silver dollar, two banks containing $8, a man's ring, a wedding ring and a tie clasp were stolen.

City Detectives R. E. Flynn and James J. Condon and Officers L. E. Daniels and J. C. Stouffer rounded up four youths on suspicion of having committed the burglary of Sisk's home.

Youths Sign Confessions They were taken to the state's attorneys office yesterday afternoon where they admitted the thefts after being questioned by Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, and Terrence J. Boyle, county investigator. All four signed statements to this effect, Boyle said.

The theft of brass valued at $45 from the B. and O. railroad was also admitted by the four youths and Charles Jackson, 23, of 115 Offutt street; and Frank Mason, 22, of 115 Offutt street, Detective Condon said.

According to Detective Condon the five young men admitted stealing the brass which was taken to a local junk dealer by Mason and sold. Some junk dealers are making it hard for police to stop these thefts by buying metals and other articles from young men without bothering to ascertain if the goods are stolen, police remarked.

Hearing Set for Today

The group will be given a hearing in trial magistrates' court this afternoon on larceny charges. Detective Condon said last night. They are being held in the city jail.

Assisting in the investigation of the B. and O. robbery were Lieut. Robert E. Shroat and Officer Ross Goshorn, of the railroad police.

Dr. H. H. Sharp Will Be Speaker at Sabbath Service Tonight

The service is being presented in conjunction with the celebration of Brotherhood Week Sabbath, and is sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The musical program to be given during the service will feature Biblical selections.

Following the services, which are being arranged by Rabbi Aaron H. Lefkowitz, tea will be served in the vestry.

Allegany To Present Play on March 13

Tryouts for "Ever Since Eve", a three act play to be presented by Allegany high school March 13, will be held this evening at 7:15 o'clock in the school auditorium.

Harold C. Wickard, science instructor and producer of over 100 plays, will direct the comedy written by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements.

Students of grades 10, 11 and 12 are eligible for tryouts this evening for parts in the play which is a satire on school newspapers.

Wickard will need an entirely new stage crew which will build the whole set needed for the production of the drama.

Postponement Of Ski Meel Held Likely

Eight Inches of Snow or More Needed To Make Tourney Possible

The Southern Ski Championship tournament, scheduled to open tomorrow at New Germany, will probably have to be postponed until the following weekend, it appeared last night.

District Forester H. C. Buckingham, co-chairman of the meet with Harry H. Muma, said that at least eight inches of snow must fall in order for the trails and slopes to be suitable for skiing. But reports from New Germany last night were that stars were brightly shining in a clear sky, giving little hope of snow today.

About two inches of snow fell Wednesday night, but much more will have to fall before this afternoon if the meet is to be held.

Wednesday night's snow, accompanied by a high wind, followed a day of almost spring-like weather which had further depleted the snow blanket on the ground.

Electric Lights Replace Candles In Voting Booths

City Will Bear Half of $100 Expense; Candles Used for 125 Years

Electric lights will be used in voting booths for the first time in Cumberland when the municipal election is held next month, it was announced yesterday by Lawrence A. Hewitt, clerk to the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors.

Hewitt said that twenty-five watt lamps will replace the tallow candles which have been a part and parcel of the election set-up here for the past one hundred and twenty-five years. Historical files of the City of Cumberland indicate that the first "town" election was held here in 1816.

See Sponsored Legislation

The change from the candle as a means of light for voters to see and mark their ballots to electric light is the result of a bill introduced by Charles M. See, chairman of the Allegany county delegation in the House of Delegates at the 1941 session of the Maryland General Assembly. The bill was enacted into a law following its passage by both houses and the affixing of Governor Herbert R. O'Connor's signature. The law became effective June 1, 1941.

The law provides that "In Allegany county during the hours of balloting in any election the illumination on the shelf in each voting booth shall not be less than five-foot candles of light, and shall be by electricity where available." It also specifies that "The Board of Supervisors of Elections of Allegany County shall carry out and enforce this provision."

In commenting on the new law last evening, Delegate See stated that electric lights have been in use in Baltimore for some time. "Electric lights are safer, they will eliminate eye strain and they'll take us out of the horse and buggy era," the blind legislator declared.

City Will Pay Half

Mayor Harry Irvine yesterday said that half of the $100 expense incurred by the installing of the wiring and electric lamps to replace the antiquated candles will be paid by the city and the other fifty per cent by the county as the same voting equipment is used for national, state and county elections at the city polling places.

Hewitt pointed out that the electric lights will be turned on in the booths at the primary contest, if it is necessary on Tuesday, March 3, and also at the general election on Tuesday, March 17.

Purchase 240 Lamps

Two hundred and forty twenty-five watt lamps will be purchased for installation at the city's twenty polling places. There are from six to eight booths in each voting center but enough lamps are being purchased just in case of an emergency, Hewitt said.

Hewitt added that he did not believe there would be any exceptions in other elections as he is certain that even in the more remote sections of the county the polling places will have electric power available.

Metropolitan Life Agents To Sell Defense Stamps

In addition to purchasing United States defense savings bonds regularly through the payroll allotment plan, the twenty-eight agents of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company will also sell defense savings stamps, according to Walter L. Pierce, district manager.

Pierce said that the goal is sale of $25 in defense stamps by each agent each week. The company advanced $750 for the initial purchase of the stamps, and the agents will sell them to policy-holders and other persons upon whom they call.

Employees of the Cumberland district have enrolled 100 per cent in the payroll allotment plan, the manager added.

Company Orders Six Electric Engines at Expenditure of $3,000,000

Diesel-electric locomotives will replace heavy steam locomotives in hauling fast freight trains east and west of Cumberland in the near future, according to John Edwards Jr., superintendent of the Cumberland division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

Edwards' statement came last evening following announcement by President Roy B. White that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad had placed orders for new equipment representing an expenditure of more than $9,500,000.

Six Diesels for Freight

This expenditure includes eight Diesel-electric locomotives ordered some months ago from the Electric Motive Division of General Motors Corporation. Two of these will be passenger locomotives, similar to those now in the B. & O. service, and six freight locomotives.
